scraping technique, for instance, may improve coverage over time but may result in lower comparability of the data across time);

- Restrictions on use of the data; the Department will seek as few limitations as possible on the number of projects it can use the data for and the number of analysts that can make use of the data;
- Frequency of update: a dataset updated daily will be more valuable than a dataset updated weekly.

3. Deliverables

The deliverable is a dataset of UK online job vacancies, in a format such that:

- It can be easily transferred to the Department's servers;
- It is accompanied by appropriate documentation and support to understand and use the data;
- It must have been collected in accordance with suitable practices for acquisition of digital data.
- The licence to use the data should be for a duration of 3 year from the moment the dataset is transferred to the Department.
