Ealing Council is holding an event for interested organisations for the forthcoming re-modelling and commissioning of HIV Support Services, for Ealing.

HIV Support services, are complementary to, but not the same as HIV clinical services where people receive medical treatment. HIV support services are intended to improve physical and emotional health and wellbeing for people living with HIV, and the prevention of onward transmission.

We aim to develop a new service model which improves health and wellbeing outcomes, is innovative and builds on best practice, is based on evidence of need and effectiveness and involves service users and stakeholders, including peer support, in the design and delivery of the services to increase service impact.

The expectation is that the new service develops close collaboration with key local services including sexual health and HIV clinical services, as well as wider health, public health and social services to ensure clear referral pathways, using opportunities to make every contact count (MECC) and to support self-management to improve health and wellbeing.

The service will support the delivery, directly and indirectly, of the following measures of the Public Health Outcomes Framework (PHOF), NHS Outcomes Framework and Framework for Sexual Health Improvement:

- People presenting with an HIV infection at a late stage
- Social Isolation
- Self-reported wellbeing
- Enhancing quality of life for people living with long-term conditions
- Preventing people from dying prematurely
- Reduce the onward transmission of HIV and avoidable deaths from it

It is the intention that the new HIV Service for Ealing will be in place by 1 April, 2019.

Who can attend?

The event is open to potential bidders and stakeholders who are involved in delivering HIV support services for Ealing residents.

The aim of the event:

- To gain insights from the audience about examples of innovation and best practice in HIV Support Service Delivery
- To consider the needs of people living with HIV in Ealing
- To offer opportunities to network with other participants
- To outline the procurement process and timetable
- In the afternoon, there is the opportunity for individual organisations to meet with commissioners for 15 minute slots for further discussion
