Description

The project aims to procure and launch an online reporting solution that will enable members of the university community and general public to report incidents of bullying, harassment, sexual misconduct, micro-aggressions, discrimination, safeguarding and prevent.

Besides the online submission of a report, the tool will need to provide data analysis and reporting functionality to monitor trends and allow a small number of staff to log into the administrative part of the tool to review the data entered by users.

The system will offer case management features such as the assigning of and tagging cases/reports to staff, as well as the recording of actions by staff (that relate to processing of reports).

Please see attached Preliminary Market Consultation document for full details about this early market engagement opportunity.

In respect of the above Leeds Trinity University seeks advice from independent experts/authorities/market participants with a view to developing the scope and specifications needed to plan and conduct its procurement procedures. For the avoidance of doubt, no call for competition has been made, and no contract award opportunity identified. All relevant information exchanged or resulting from this preliminary market consultation will be documented and may be communicated to other candidates and tenderers participating in any resultant procurement procedure.
