- Introduction

- Background

The Department for Transport (DfT) produces Transport Analysis Guidance \(TAG\) that consists of software tools and guidance on transport modelling and appraisal methods. This guidance enables analysts to undertake evidence-based appraisal and development of transport interventions, which support business cases and inform investment funding decisions.

Some TAG modelling guidance units have not been updated significantly since 2014, meanwhile there have been major improvements and changes to data availability and modelling approaches during this time.

The Department has embarked on a project, working with a consortium of consultancies (Arup, AECOM and SYSTRA with support from University College London and Institute for Transport Studies Leeds) to review modelling guidance, address shortcomings, identify best practice and update TAG modelling units. The project has identified gaps in the guidance and prioritised themes to be reviewed. As a result, a few of TAG modelling units have been updated but have not been published.

- Purpose

Transport Appraisal and Strategic Modelling (TASM) Division within the Department seeks to commission peer reviewers to review changes to the existing TAG units:

- M1.1 principles of modelling and forecasting
- M1.2 data sources and surveys
- M2.1 variable demand modelling
- M3.2 public transport assignment modelling

The overall aim of the service is to review the updated TAG modelling guidance units before publication to ensure:

- The advice and guidance updates are sound, proportionate and represent best practice.
- The evidence on which the guidance is based is consistent, of good quality and proportionate.

- Procurement (tentative) Timetable

The below procurement timelines may be subject to change. The Department will inform interested bidders if the timelines alter.

• Technical Requirements

The appointed peer reviewers will provide expert advice and professional opinion as to whether the updated guidance represents good practice and is sufficiently succinct and understandable for a range of practitioner experience. The guidance should allow for appropriate and proportionate application within the appraisal process.

The peer reviewers are expected to:

- Carry out a thorough review on the updated TAG units, including any modelling methodologies outlined in the updates.
- Provide a review report, which consists of the above reviews. The Department may share this report to internal and external stakeholders.
- Respond to any of the Department’s queries of the review report and amending the report if necessary.

• TAG Units in Scope

TAG unit M1.1

This unit was last updated in January 2014 and focuses on developing the evidence to support business cases for major transport schemes, often providing examples focused on highway schemes. There is a need to extend its purpose to more general principles and provide guidance in several areas.

The unit has been strengthened in relation to:

- The specific purpose of the unit, which currently focuses on scheme business cases, should be extended to cover a broader set of purposes and their linkage to proportionate approaches.
- Provide a balance between different modes and modelling types using broader examples.
- Best practice reporting and clarify reporting requirements for modelling and appraisal and potential checks and reviews that should be undertaken.
- Providing guidance on how to share model descriptions to all potential users and the value it can provide.
- The engagement process with main stakeholders, complementing and cross-referencing advice in other TAG units.

There are new information and advice related to modelling new mobility and active modes, as well as activity-based modelling (using agent-based method). Technical notes related to these topics can be used as background information when reviewing the unit.

TAG unit M1.2

This unit has been restructured and undergone some significant updates, including:

- Adding clarity on current advice on age of data, seasonality variation and neutrality
- Updating advice on existing data sources
- Adding new data sources that are currently not listed in the unit
- Data requirements for calculation of annualisation factors

An extensive literature review to gather evidence has been carried out, which is documented in a technical note. This note is a prelude to draft the updated guidance and can be used as background information when reviewing the guidance unit.

TAG unit M2.1

The updates to this unit have been prioritised to cover the following areas:

- Clarifying existing guidance on:
 - The need to use variable demand model
 - Appropriate convergence GAP formula for cost averaging models
 - The need to segment by car ownership
 - Sensitivity testing
 - Production-attraction approach should be adopted
- Refreshing the destination choice and mode choice parameters
- Refreshing the realism test elasticities
 - Two technical notes have been produced for:
- The refreshed realism test elasticities that use the meta-model
- The refreshed illustrative parameters that take account of two recent transport models

These notes are not subject to peer review but can be used as background information when reviewing the updated guidance.

TAG unit M3.2

This unit has been restructured and improved with additional or updated advice focusing on the following topics:

- Incorporating guidelines for different forms of public transport models and their capabilities (crowding, fares, user segmentation)
- Creating a clear linkage to uni-modal rail modelling (TAG unit A5.3 and Chapter 8 of unit M4) referencing it in the guidelines
- Incorporating principles on the coordination between highway and public transport networks and an audit list of required checking of networks and data.
- Incorporating worked examples and principles on network and zoning system design in relation to walk access/egress to stops and interchanges and impact on the chosen level of details
- Enhancing areas related to the route choice providing a definite set of quality and in-vehicle time factors for different modes and update the generalised cost formulation and reference to definition of Generalised Journey Time for models based on PDFH approach.
- Calibration and validation criteria by assessing link/cordon/matrix criteria, convergence criteria for crowding model, journey time criteria in relation to highway criteria.

An extensive literature review and reviews of modelling reports from public transport models from around the country were undertaken. This is outlined in a technical note that can be used as background information when reviewing the guidance unit.

• Skills, Experience and Capabilities

Peer reviewers must be experts in transport modelling and have substantial skills and experience in:

- building and reviewing transport models
- using transport models for appraisals
- writing and/or reviewing the Department's guidance

The submission must clearly demonstrate that each peer reviewer being proposed has the required expertise in the topic being reviewed:

- Forecasting models and in-depth knowledge of all modelling aspects (TAG Unit M1.1)
- Transport data and surveys (TAG Unit M1.2)
- Variable demand models (TAG Unit M2.1)
- Public transport assignment models (TAG Unit M3.2)
- Implementation and Deliverables

- The peer review is expected to start in July/August 2023.
- For each TAG unit, the key deliverable is a peer review report. The table below shows expected timescales for activities and deliverables.

• Activity / Deliverable	• Expected Date

- Quality Assurance Requirements

The selected supplier must have excellent communication and reporting/writing skills with very high standard of written and verbal communication and the ability to produce good quality reports, presentations and other material to high technical standard.

- Service Conditions and Environmental Factors

Bidders are encouraged to form a consortium to ensure they draw upon a wide breadth of technical expertise required to produce robust reviews of the TAG units in scope. If consortium bids are received, the department will enter into an agreement with a prime supplier. Management of sub-contracts is the sole responsibility of the prime supplier.

In order to ensure that the peer reviews provide sufficient challenge to the production of the new guidance, it is important that the peer reviews must be independent of the guidance production.

The Department would be satisfied that peer reviewers are independent if they are different practitioners from different organisations (whether companies, SMEs or academic institutions) from those producing the guidance. Different practitioners from the same organisations who produce the guidance are not seen as independent.

Bids would be expected to include names of peer reviewers. Up to two peer reviewers may be proposed for each TAG unit. Bidders are encouraged to propose different experts to review different units where possible. The same person may be proposed to review up to two TAG units, however, please note the timescale requirements.

- Contract conditions

The peer reviews are advice, not instruction. The Department will undertake to read their advice fully but will not be bound to act on the comments made by the peer reviewers. The peer reviewers will be expected to advise on positive and negative consequences and risks (“pros and cons”) and to provide their expert judgement on how the proposed approach should be changed, if necessary.

Any products provided to carry out this task (e.g. guidance documentation) must be kept confidential. They must not be disclosed to any party outside the organisation or used for any purpose other than this project, and they must be deleted once the project is completed.

Ownership and the Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) for any work and documentation produced as part of this project are with the Department. This includes any work that the supplier undertakes on requests or funded by third-party users, unless the Department transfers ownership of any one or all elements to another body at its own discretion.

- Location

The work is expected to be carried out at the suppliers' own premises.

If required, the suppliers may be expected to travel to the DfT offices for meetings, however, in most cases online-based interactions are expected (e.g. via telephone or Microsoft Teams).

- Data Protection

The supplier will be required to comply with all applicable requirements of the Data Protection Legislation (including the General Data Protection Regulation ((EU) 2016/679) (“GDPR”), the Law Enforcement Directive (Directive (EU) 2016/680), and all applicable Law about

However, the supplier will not be required to process any Personal Data on behalf of the Department.

- Management and Contract Administration

- Contract management

The primary point of contact for this contract will be the Department's Project Manager via email/phone. DfT standard terms and conditions for the supply of goods and services will apply.

An inception meeting will be set up at the start of contract to discuss the work, deliverables, and timescales.

- Payment

The supplier will be issued with a purchase order. Invoices must quote the correct purchase order number and must be sent to the Shared Services at the address below.

- SSA.invoice@sharedservicesarvato.co.uk

Payment can only be made following satisfactory delivery of pre-agreed deliverables. To assist prompt payment, a draft copy of each invoice should be sent to the contract manager by email for approval.

- Training / Skills / Knowledge Transfer

The requirement of the service is to review the updated TAG modelling guidance. Therefore, training and/or skills/knowledge transfer is not expected.

- Arrangement for the End of the Contract

The requirement of the service is to review the updated TAG modelling guidance. Therefore, handing over the work to the next contract is not applicable. The supplier will be expected to provide reports as outlined in the deliverables table above.
