We give men and women the opportunity to take stock of where they are and what they want from their lives, take responsibility for their actions, explore what's holding them back and move forward.CIAO's radical approach sees offenders (our "clients") solely as people and doesn't tell them what to do. Skilled coaches help them consider and take responsibility for changing their lives: they are challenged and supported to define and reach their own goals. The coach explores the client's current situation in different areas of their lives using the Outcomes Star (an objective visual tool that supports and measures change) before taking the client's lead in looking at their values, limiting beliefs and goal setting. Clients then believe they can change and start to do so. |

It's main practical function is the employment of full-time chaplains to undertake key pieces of work in Lincolnshire, North and North East Lincolnshire. LCS is committed to "the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of the inhabitants of Lincolnshire." The areas of work are in education (Further Education and Higher Education), the broad economy of our communities, specialisms in the rural economy - agriculture in particular, and in the environment and sustainable communities. The full-time chaplains are assisted by volunteer chaplains and numbers of associates which extends the work more widely. LCS has a Board of Trustees and works closely with the participating churches - the covenanted denominations of Churches Together in All Lincolnshire, from whom it receives funding. Funding also comes from a range of partners. |

CoDA is based on AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) and uses an adapted version of their Twelve Steps and Traditions as a central part of its suggested programme of recovery. To attend CoDA meetings, all you need is the willingness to work at having healthy relationships. This means that all kinds of people attend meetings. Individual members can and do have differing political, religious and other affiliations, but since these are not relevant to the business of recovery from co-dependency, no comment is made about them. All meetings begin with an introduction which usually includes the Twelve Steps and Traditions, a welcome to newcomers, and an explanation of the format the meeting will take. There may be a speaker, or a reading of a Step or a topic. The meeting is then open for people to share their experiences, feelings and recovery with the group. There is no obligation to share if you do not wish to, whether you are a newcomer or a long-established member. Each meeting usually incorporates a collection to cover the expenses of the group (eg hire of the meeting room) but CoDA is non-profit making. The meeting will end with a special prayer, called the Serenity Prayer. After the meeting, newcomers who would like more |
