Schedule 1 Special Conditions

Not Used

Schedule 2 Specification

1. Background

The government's Spaceflight Programme aims to create conditions enabling the UK to become the leading provider of commercial small satellite launch in Europe – generating growth for the UK's economy and establishing the foundations for ongoing market growth and commercial sustainability.

Maintaining a robust and comprehensive evidence base to support decision making for the Spaceflight Programme is important – we were required by HM Treasury to make revisions to our Business Case for a Phase 2 Spaceflight Programme and so we are seeking to update and extend the 2021 Launch Market Study evidence base via a 12-week study. We would like to update the data and findings in three areas of the programme:

1) Economic Modelling

The original LMS specification included evidence gathering to update our understanding and enhance the evidence base to increase the robustness of model inputs and therefore of model outputs for the Cost Benefit Analysis of programme options. Following feedback from Business Case reviewers within Government, UKSA wishes to understand the employment generation forecasts for Spaceflight programme options (which we will supply descriptions of, in confidence, on engagement) and would like to include this within the update to the LMS. This will allow us to use the employment impacts to work up towards a change in GVA (bottom-up modelling).

2) Benefits Management

The original LMS specification sought to update and enhance our understanding of the causal pathway for benefits creation through the Spaceflight programme. This includes the assumptions about operating conditions of the potential UK launch market. UKSA wants to obtain an update to the LMS findings on potential UK launch market capture to take account of events and data from 2021 to 2023. This will further support understanding of risks to benefits realisation and possible opportunities to maximise benefits.

3) Sustainable Market Development

Phase 1 of the Spaceflight Programme is focussed on enabling UK commercial spaceflight; pathfinder launch grants to ensure necessary infrastructure is built and launch service providers enter the market; external engagement to ensure necessary treaties are signed with other countries and territories; legislation to ensure there is clear legislation governing the UK launch market; and regulation to establish a functioning and effective regulator for the market.

We are seeking a desk-based update to the evidence and findings in the original LMS about the potential size and sustainability of a UK commercial spaceflight market, to reflect evidence from the period from 2021 to 2023. The evidence from the LMS and updated data relating to the period 2021-2023 will be used to consider the case for government intervention beyond Phase 1 of the Spaceflight programme. We are seeking updated figures for the global and UK addressable market, with a comparison with the figures in the original LMS and how 2021-2023 realised figures line up with what the LMS predicted, to show if there have been any significant changes.

Given a change in the strategic objectives for Phase 2, we are looking to understand what the road towards a fully commercially sustainable launch market looks like. This includes determining the intermediary steps to a fully commercial small satellite launch market; how do we measure progress towards it and how far does Phase 2 get us along this road (based on descriptions of the preferred options that we will supply, in confidence). This will involve substantial additional primary research on top of desk-based research.

2. Aims and Objectives of the Project

This commission is an update of the original Launch Market Study (LMS) that the UK Space Agency commissioned from know.space in 2020-2021. In certain places, the specification for this LMS update study will refer to sections of the original LMS.

Similarly to the last LMS study, scope of this update covers specifically satellites less than 1000kg in mass. However, this specification covers the dates 2022-2040, whereas the original LMS cover the dates 2022-2034.

This study requires both desk-based research as well as direct market engagement.

Similarly to the original LMS, where it is possible and where know.space has access, please cross-compare the results of the LMS update study with any other contemporary studies (by contemporary we mean studies that have been published since the original LMS was completed and so are not included to the cross-comparisons in the original LMS).

The aim of this specification is to:

- Framing the international and UK launch market.
- Update the Global and UK Addressable small satellite launch demand figures using the same data source (Northern Sky Research) and filtering approach used in the original LMS.
- Reassess the international and UK small satellite launch market, on both the supply and demand side in the near and longer-term, in light of market changes and geopolitical events.
- Provide an assessment of the international competitive position of UK launchers vs European/global small/medium/large launchers, in the immediate and further future.
- Reassess the risk landscape for UK launch and the greatest risks for realising a commercially sustainable UK launch market.
- Reassess the market potential for UK launch to achieve commercial sustainability if HMG takes no further actions to support the UK launch market beyond Phase 1.
- Produce a framework explaining the pathway to UK launch commercial sustainability, including:
 - How far is UK launch (UK launch service providers, spaceports) currently in its progression towards commercial sustainability?
 - What are the subsequent step for UK launch to achieve commercial sustainability?
 - What are the key metrics to measure to track UK launch progress towards commercial sustainability, from which to produce SMART objectives?
- Assess how far a proposed package of HMG interventions to support UK launch (including the UKSA commission UK launches, in-orbit demonstrator missions using UK launch, grants to support the UK supply chain and PhD programmes) would take UK launch towards achieving commercial sustainability, and how we would measure this.
- Provide a bottom-up methodology for the employment impacts of proposed HMG interventions, and UK launch market events (for example the impact of a UK launch on UK employment).
- Assess the strategic, soft power and qualitative impacts of UK launch.

To deliver on these high-level objectives two key outputs are required:

- A report
- An update to the model forecasting UK launch cadence produced in the original LMS commission

More details on both outputs are given below, specifying requirements on content.

Output 1) Report – Launch Market Study Update

1) Framing the international and UK launch market.

This is essentially an update to the chapter '2 Launch Market: A primer' in the original Launch Market Study that sets out categorisations for small launch supply and demand. For consistency, and to compare updated figures (see 2 below) please use the same supply and demand categorisations.

Please also provide an updated assessment of whether the customer decision factors defined in the original LMS, or their potential weighting, have changed (this may overlap with deliverable 3).

2) Update the Global and UK Addressable small satellite launch demand figures using the same data source (Northern Sky Research) and filtering approach used in the original LMS.

This deliverable includes:

- Update the figures and analysis, especially those produced from Northern Sky Research (NSR) database for original Launch Market Study Chapters:
 - 3 Global launch market
 - 5 UK addressable market
- Provide updated figures for the date range 2022-2040 where:
 - Historical/realised data for 2022, and perhaps some of 2023, is compared to what was forecast in the original LMS, and any significant deviations between what was forecast and what was realised are explained.
 - Forecast data for the remainder of 2023-2040 is compared with the forecasts for 2023-2034 in the original LMS, and any significant deviations between what was forecast and what was realised are explained (may overlap with the scope of point 3 below).
- As specified in the requirements, all datasets, surveys results and modelling used to produce the result are deliverables.
- Deliverable will also include explanations of the NSR filters used so that the UKSA could replicate the analysis in a comparable way, if necessary in the future.
- Please note that the updated data provided should ideally be conducted using the same data filters used for the original LMS for consistency. However, if there is a reason to adjust the filters to increase accuracy or because of updated and improved understanding/intelligence this is acceptable, though it should be explained in the report and the impacts should be assessed in the report.
- Please note that the data reported must be to the same detail as in the original LMS and using the same breakdowns (launch vehicles size, geography, satellite type etc) as defined in the chapter '2 Launch Market: A primer' in the original LMS.

3) Reassess the international and UK small satellite launch market, on both the supply and demand side in the near and longer-term, in light of market changes and geopolitical events.

This deliverable includes:

- This deliverable applies specifically to the narrative for the original LMS chapters:
 - 3 Global launch market
 - 5 UK addressable market
- Please assess how the supply and demand landscape of global and UK launch, in the recent past, the present, the near future (next five years) and the farther future (to 2040) has changed/been impacted by macroeconomic, geopolitical or industry specific events, including but not limited to:
 - Continued impacts of Covid
 - Russian Invasion of the Ukraine
 - Increase in energy and other commodity and labour costs
 - High inflation and interest rates
 - Potential economic recession
 - The global launch market shifting towards medium and large launchers
 - Launch passing the optimism curve, its impact on investment in launchers, and a potential consolidation of small launchers
 - Events within the UK and global launch industry
 - Any other factors which might influence global supply and demand.

5) Provide an assessment of the international competitive position of UK launchers vs European/global small/medium/large launchers, in the immediate and further future.

Deliverables include:

- Provide an assessment of the competitive position of UK launchers vs European/global small/medium/large launchers, in the immediate and further future.
- Launch plans, readiness, and potential demand for small satellite launch in other European and relevant non-European nations who are in competition with UK spaceports for commercial small satellite launch.

6) Reassess the risk landscape for UK launch and the greatest risks for realising a commercially sustainable UK launch market.

Deliverables include:

- Update the assessment of risks to UK launch completed in the original LMS.
- Particularly interested in identifying any existential risks to UK launch present now, in the immediate future, or in the farther future.

7) Reassess the market potential for UK launch to achieve commercial sustainability if HMG takes no further actions to support the UK launch market beyond Phase 1.

Deliverables include:

- An assessment of how plausible it would be that UK launch could achieve commercial sustainability without further HMG interventions to support the market.

8) Produce a framework explaining the pathway to UK launch commercial sustainability.

Til now UKSA Spaceflight strategy has focused on and assessed UK launch commercial sustainability in a binary manner – it is commercially sustainable, or it is not commercially sustainable. With the focus being on providing enough HMG support to UK launch to ensures it crosses into a state of commercial sustainability.

However, UKSA Spaceflight strategy and sentiment has now shifted. Spaceflight is now seen as a longer-term processes involving multiple stages of HMG support to secure commercial sustainability. Due to this, the UKSA requires a more detailed understanding of what the pathway to UK launch commercial sustainability is, what the steps are, and how we measure progress.

Deliverables include:

- Produce a framework for the pathway to UK launch commercial sustainability – what stages/key thresholds/features exist in the journey?
- How far is UK launch (UK launch service providers, spaceports) currently in its progression towards commercial sustainability, where does it sit on the framework?
- What are the subsequent steps for UK launch to achieve commercial sustainability?
- What are the key metrics should be used to measure to track UK launch progress towards commercial sustainability, from which to produce SMART objectives?
- What conditions need to be true for the launch market to achieve commercial sustainability?
- How do we measure progress towards it?
- What secondary metrics can be used to determine whether the UK is further ahead on the road to a fully commercially sustainable launch market compared to the rest of Europe?

9) Assess how far a proposed package of HMG interventions to support UK launch (including the UKSA commission UK launches, in-orbit demonstrator missions using UK launch, grants to support the UK supply chain and PhD programmes) would take UK launch towards achieving commercial sustainability, and how we would measure this.

- Deliverables include:
- Using the framework and material produced in deliverable 8, provide an assessment/methodology to assess how much impact a given HMG intervention, and packages of interventions, would have in progressing UK launch towards commercial sustainability.
- Extending deliverable 8, metrics should be provided that can be measured to verify that UK launch has progressed the forecast amount towards commercial sustainability.

10) Provide a bottom-up methodology and analysis for the employment impacts of proposed HMG interventions, and UK launch market events (for example the impact of a UK launch on UK employment).

The Greenbook and HMT now place much greater weight on estimating benefits via bottom-up rather than top-down estimating techniques as defined below:

- Top Down: Start by estimating the GVA impact first, then using this GVA figure and additional assumptions/data to produce an estimate for the employment impact.
- Bottom Up: Start by estimating the employment impact first, then using a wage premia and other assumptions, estimate the GVA impact.

Deliverables includes:

- Provide a methodology and analysis to estimate the bottom impacts of proposed HMG interventions – this means directly estimating the employment impacts of the interventions, then estimating the wage premia and using other necessary assumptions and data (such as wages) to estimate the GVA impact of the interventions.
- Number and types of jobs that may be generated by UKSA's shortlisted options for the Spaceflight Programme (contracts to fund UK small satellite launches; contracts to fund In-Orbit Demonstration payloads; and grants for technology investment projects).
- UKSA to provide info on programme intervention options on a confidential basis to allow this analysis
- To note, UKSA would like know.space to sequence their work so that this analysis can be delivered earlier in the timeline (before the final report deadline)

12) Assess the strategic, soft power and qualitative impacts of UK launch.

Deliverables include:

- Assess the strategic/geopolitical impact of the UK being a launcher nation vs not being a launcher nation.
- Assess the soft power and qualitative impacts of the UK having launch capability.

Output 2) UK Launch Cadence Model Update

Deliverables include:

- Update the UK launch cadence model based on new qualitative and quantitative research, including any reassessments of the customer decision factors and weightings.
- In line with deliverable 7, reassess forecasts for UK launch if no further HMG support is offered beyond Phase 1 – will UK launch survive?
- Offer a methodology by which to adjust market secured by each UK launcher based on their competitiveness.

As specified in the requirements, all datasets, surveys results and modelling used to produce the result are deliverables and should be provided in an accessible format.

3. Suggested Methodology

Output 1) Report – Launch Market Study Update

We would expect all sections to include desk-based research using the latest evidence and data (in collaboration with NSRs database).

For sections 8 and 9 we would expect direct market engagement and substantial additional primary research including interviews, workshops etc.

The UKSA will provide information on programme intervention options on a confidential basis to allow analysis to be conducted.

Similarly to the original LMS, where it is possible and where know.space has access, please cross-compare the results of the LMS update study with any other contemporary studies (by contemporary we mean studies that have been published since the original LMS was completed and so are not included to the cross-comparisons in the original LMS).

Output 2) UK Launch Cadence Model Update

Updating the UK Launch Cadence Model will rely on assumptions, data and evidence found in the course of completing Output 1. The model should be based on new qualitative and quantitative research, including any reassessments of the customer decision factors and weightings.

As specified in the requirements, all datasets, surveys results and modelling used to produce the result are deliverables and should be provided in an accessible format.
