SCHEDULE ONE*1 BACKGROUND

This project has two separate but inter-related strands:

- A process evaluation of the pilot phase of the Strategic College Improvement Fund, to inform full roll out later in 2018. The outcomes from this strand will be a high quality research report suitable for publication and discussions with the department around recommendations for possible changes to the processes ahead of main SCIF roll out in light of findings.
- Provision of bespoke Expert Analytical Advice directly to the colleges. The successful contractor will work directly with the colleges who have been awarded SCIF funding. They will jointly refine their self-evaluation plans, agree key performance indicators and onward monitoring. The data from self-evaluations will be fed into a wider impact evaluation of the programme, to be commissioned in due course. The outcome from this strand will be higher quality evaluation data delivered by the colleges and production of best practice guidance to help potential SCIF applicants deliver self-evaluations without the assistance of an independent researcher.

2 AIM

The overall purpose of this project is to:

- Provide bespoke expert analytical advice to assist the first SCIF projects to design and deliver high-quality self-evaluations, agreeing reasonable and appropriate key performance indicators. This will include working in partnership with colleges.
- Use the data provided by the SCIF colleges to assess progress, whilst recognising that 'full impact' is not likely to be detectable ahead of main stage roll out later in 2018.
- Critically and objectively review the application process and partnership model to identify where refinements to policy and processes can be made, ahead of mainstage roll out- identifying any 'quick wins' that might help make the process more efficient and effective (respecting the need for sound stewardship of public funds). This will include working with the department and what has already been done around lessons learned and reviewing the processes.
- Use the data provided by SCIF projects, along with any other data collected as part of this process evaluation and/or by the department, to develop high quality guidance aimed at future SCIF applicants to help them improve self-evaluations.

The process evaluation will seek to answer the following questions:

- What elements of the process have worked well? Why?
- What elements of the process worked less well? Why?
- What have been the unintended consequences of the programme design?
- What changes need to be made to the processes to ensure that projects in mainstage roll-out stand the best chance of success?

- Was the volume of applications appropriate, given the funding available and other programme parameters? If not, what factors limited the number of applications generated?
- What initial benefits have the projects in the pilot phase of the SCIF generated?
- Are there specific types of project that are generating greater benefit than the others? Are there specific types of project that are generating less benefit than others?
- Are the projects on track to meet their aims and objectives? If not, why?
- What challenges have projects faced? What lessons can be learned from more successful and less successful projects?
- How well are the partnerships working between the colleges that are trying to improve, and the partner colleges that are providing them with support? What are their respective perceptions of the benefits and the limitations partnerships?
- Would the funded projects (in full or part) be easily replicable at other colleges?
- Are there any key differences among projects from i) colleges that applied to the SCIF on their own initiative, ii) projects from colleges that applied after receiving a recommendation from a Further Education Commissioner Diagnostic Assessment, and iii) projects from colleges that are in formal Further Education Commissioner intervention and were actively encouraged by the Further Education Commissioner to apply?
- How might future bids be improved? What further guidance needs to be provided to allow for this?
- What are the implications of the range of different projects funded in the pilot?
- How effective are the partnerships working? How were partners selected? What types of support were colleges receiving before the SCIF? How has SCIF changed the support they now receive?

3 OBJECTIVES

The Contractor shall use all reasonable endeavours to achieve the following objectives:

- Objective one – to produce a high quality research report suitable for publication and discussions with the department around recommendations for possible changes to the processes ahead of main SCIF roll out in light of findings. This is to be achieved according to timetable agreed in paragraph 4.
- Objective two – to produce high quality evaluation data delivered by the colleges and production of best practice guidance to help potential SCIF applicants deliver self-evaluations without the assistance of an independent researcher. This is to be achieved according to timetable agreed in paragraph 4.
