Background

NERC is seeking a training and skills expert, to provide short-term expertise leading to a review of NERC's cohort training model. The project will critically review information from our Doctoral Training Partnerships and Centres for Doctoral Training as well as engaging the wider research community. Ultimately, the work will inform future commissioning of NERC's doctoral training offer. Up to £45,000 is available to support this work. NERC will also be assessing the portfolio balance of investment in Talent and Skills in 2022 and there may be a need to be flexible in delivering this work to consider elements of the wider studentships portfolio.

Purpose

NERC invests in studentships delivered through the cohort training model in the form of Doctoral Training Partnerships (DTPs) and Centres for Doctoral Training (CDTs). These cohort training programmes provide postgraduate research opportunities across the NERC science remit as well as a supporting the development of a diverse range of skills that are appropriate for a variety of careers. DTPs support responsive postgraduate training where the topic is chosen by the student or supervisor and can be within any area of NERC's remit. CDTs provide postgraduates with specialist skills that are linked to NERC's strategic priorities or to priority skills needs.

In 2013 NERC awarded funding through a competitive process to 15 DTPs (known as DTP1). These awards provided funding for 240 notional PhD studentships per annum across five annual cohort intakes from October 2014. Following a mid-term evaluation in 2017, NERC invested in the second phase of NERC DTPs (DTP2). In 2018 NERC awarded funding through a competitive process to 17 DTP2s to support 235 notional PhD studentships per annum across five annual cohort intakes from October 2019.

NERC awards one CDT per annum and a CDT award typically consists of funding to support three annual intakes of between eight and ten students as well as additional funding to assist in the development and delivery of the CDT training programme. The focus areas of NERC CDTs are informed through an evidence-gathering process that examines new evidence of skills gaps and training needs in addition to NERC's priorities.

As the end of the first DTP awards approaches and with three DTP2 cohorts now recruited, it is timely for NERC to review the cohort training supported to inform future commissioning of postgraduate training. Furthermore, the review will help NERC to ensure the current cohort training awards have delivered against NERC's success criteria.

Aims and Objectives of the Project

The overarching aim of this review is to explore the success of the cohort training model in the NERC remit to optimise and inform future investments. The output of the review should be a written report. The structure of the review should focus on the NERC's six success criteria for training¹ which are shown below.

- Training Excellence
- Research Excellence
- Multidisciplinary Training Environments
- Excellent Students
- Quality Assurance
- Produces Success Stories

Consideration of diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) should be incorporated into each of the success criteria above as appropriate. However, the review should include DEI as a separate theme. This will help NERC identify the challenges of equal access, inclusion and the diversity of the student population and what the DTPs/CDTs are doing to address these challenges. NERC will utilise this information to inform the future cohort training commissioning process (e.g., Funding Opportunity Development, assessment processes and specific terms and conditions) to ensure DTP3 and other future calls are open and accessible to all applicants.

Suggested Methodology

The report format and methodology used should be determined by the applicant but must address the six training success criteria outlined in the “Aims and Objectives” section above.

As part of the review, evidence will consist of information previously collected by NERC and includes DTP/CDT reports, destinations data, remit classification data, and anonymised studentship data. Further resources which could be utilised as part of the review include HESA data, reviews from other Research Councils², Culture, Employment and Development in Academic Research Survey (CEDARS – vitae³), DEI best practice for recruitment and data collection (NERC)⁴, UKRI new deal for students⁵ and the R&D People and Culture Strategy⁶.

As cohort training is delivered in conjunction with a range of stakeholders, it will be important to engage with the community in order to collect views from across partnerships. This will include DTP/CDT directors, students, non-academic partners and administrative staff (both within the DTPs/CDTs and within university research offices). The information collected from stakeholders will be used to supplement that previously held by NERC.

When submitting your bid please address the specific questions outlined in the accompanying Invitation to Quote questions document.

Deliverables

The primary output from the project should be a written report covering the following:

- A review exploring the success of NERC's cohort training structured around NERC's six success criteria for training
- Consideration of approaches to ensuring diversity, equity and inclusion within NERC's cohort training offer
- A series of recommendations to optimise and inform NERC's future training investments

The project will also involve supporting NERC's strategic decision making in the Talent and Skills portfolio by providing expert advice on the postgraduate training landscape.

Key deliverables and milestones are outlined below:

- Attend project kick-off meeting with the funders 3rd May 2022
- Agree detailed methodology and sign-off contract with UKRI by 4th May 2022
- Provide regular updates on project progress to the NERC Talent and Skills team (either in writing or through virtual meetings) to update on progress and direction of project
- Attend a project review meeting 30th May 2022
- Submit a draft report for review (timeline TBC)
- Report addressing the aims of the work and making recommendations to NERC no later than 22nd June 2022
