Attachment 1 – Services Specification

This service pack is designed to help clients seeking to partner with a highly skilled and proven delivery supplier with extensive knowledge of working to Government Digital standards, User Centred Design (UCD) and Agile development.

This should be used by clients with technical and delivery capability gaps within existing and new teams. It enables a team-of-teams approach, where there are multiple Beta teams, alongside central coherence, to deliver services which are fully aligned with each other and wider customer strategy. It enables best value for money through re-use (e.g., code, architectural patterns) and delivers outcomes based on user needs and in line with government service standards.

This service pack provides the customer with the flexibility to prioritise different Beta outcomes depending on the needs of the business. The Service Pack can be described as a “block” of beta delivery where we would expect 2 sprints of agile delivery per block (19 days per block). If the Beta is particularly complex, then multiple blocks will need to be purchased to achieve the overall beta outcomes.

Expected outputs:

- Agile service delivery in line with GDS Service Manual and Standard, specifically public and private beta delivery.

Expected outcomes:

- Delivery of impactful and coherent digital services
- Delivery against multiple business needs within the contracted period
- Upskilling customers team members in agile and user centred design

Please refer to Appendix 1 for a copy of the Supplier Proposal.

The R2D2 team will continue with the existing ways of working and tooling to provide continuity and governance ensuring delivery efficiency and alignment with the business. Ways of working will continue to be refined and iterated through regular retrospectives.

Product and Sprint Backlogs will be our primary artefacts, with sprint-by-sprint priorities aligned with the Product Manager (PM) to meet Minimum Viable Products (MVP), see figure 2. Each sprint, the team will plan the scope of work, conduct retrospectives (to continuously improve how they work) and present show & tells to solicit feedback. Where issues arise, the PM and Service Owner (SO) are able to re-prioritise and evaluate work-arounds, trading progress against technical debt.

Delivery risks

The delivery of the SoW will only be achieved in successful collaboration with other parts of MOD. The R2D2 team has external dependencies on 3rd parties within MOD or on contract with MOD (MODCLOUD, Army API Gateway, Datasource API providers, Enterprise IDaM, MODNET, Networks and Gateways, Navy Digital Hosting etc). If they fail to deliver, then it will impact the R2D2 Team's ability to deliver. The extant risk tracker will be reviewed at the start of this contract but a number of high-level risks are worth noting:

Milestones/deliverables affected	Delivery risk caused by external dependencies
Default Taskorg, Demand at OFFICIAL, Workforce Supply at OFFICIAL	A failure of the Army to deliver an ODR API (likely RESTful) that allows R2D2 data import service to ingest ODR data, prevents its inclusion in the R2D2 application scope and reduces the accuracy of the assessments made
All	A failure of DD SOC to prioritise work with R2D2, delays onboard to DD SOC and corresponding achievement of IAtO from the JSP 604 Release and Deployment Board
All	A failure to invest in the creation of SLIM RTVM data sets in Navy and RAF prevent onboarding of users to R2D2 delaying delivery of benefits
