Nothing in this clause shall exclude liability for fraud or fraudulent misrepresentation.
- 20.5 Any waiver or relaxation either partly, or wholly of any of the terms and conditions of the Agreement shall be valid only if it is communicated to the other Party in writing and expressly stated to be a waiver. - 20.6 The Agreement shall not constitute or imply any partnership, joint venture, agency, fiduciary relationship or other relationship between the Parties other than the contractual relationship expressly provided for in the Agreement. Neither Party shall have, nor represent that it has, any authority to make any commitments on the other Party's behalf.

Annex 2 - Service Specification

There have been an increasing number of UXO finds at Kingly Vale National Nature Reserve (NNR). We require a UXO survey of the site to identify UXO present and arrange for the safe disposal of any UXO found.

Natural England require a detailed survey and search of the area to locate, identify and clear any items of Unexploded Ordnance (UXO) that may pose a threat to members of the public, or anybody visiting or working within the Kingly Vale Nature Reserve .

Areas that reflect public use alongside working areas (scrub clearance & grazing) including the nature trail (sweep either side), and broadened out the area to the west of the entrance where the Forest School mostly operate - also being near the entrance where children will naturally explore more are to be prioritised. The following areas were omitted from the requirement:

- Northern part of reserve where both public use and our work is limited.
- Area on Bow Hill north of bridle track as again work is very limited here.
- Western hill side - steep with mostly yew - again minimal involvement here.

The initial map showing the area proposed for clearance, a hazard map and more recent UXO finds provided with the request for quotations are included at the end of this Annex for reference and context.

Contractor Approach and Methodology

The site consists of approximately 62 Ha of open rural land which was used for military training during WW2. Several items of ordnance have been found on-site by members of the public. Natural England require a detailed survey/search of the area to locate, identify and clear any items of Unexploded Ordnance (UXO) that may pose a threat to members of the public, or anybody visiting or working within the Kingly Vale Nature Reserve.

In order to achieve this, the Contractor will complete a structured visual and magnetometer survey of the reserve, focussing on the areas where members of the public/employees are likely to pass through, including working areas (scrub clearance & grazing), the nature trails, and the broader area to the west of the entrance where the Forest School is located, being near the entrance where visitors are more likely to explore areas off of the designated paths.

Following a site visit by the Contractor's Operations Team, it was confirmed that large areas of the site are covered with dense vegetation and as such, these areas are less likely to be transited. For this reason, less priority would be given to these areas, unless particular development is planned, for example, new paths or clearance of undergrowth.

The Contractor understand that a number of items of ordnance have been located within the park, and its history as a mortar range is well understood. This information will inform the UXO Risk Management techniques that will be employed at the site and will ensure that the correct methodology including visual and electro-magnetic survey is employed.

The UXO risk management procedures outlined below will provide assurance on the safety of site personnel and to reduce the UXO risk to ALARP during development of the site.

Visual and Electromagnetic Non-Intrusive UXO Survey

The Contractor understands that previous items of ordnance have been located visually and the Contractor UXO survey team will conduct methodical visual surveys of all areas as shown in Figure 1 above.

The Contractor will supply a three-man team consisting of 1 x UXO Supervisor and 2 x UXO Engineers.

The UXO Supervisor is an ex-military bomb disposal Officer, trained and experienced in the detection, identification and assessment of unexploded ordnance.

A non-intrusive UXO survey will allow the detection of potential shallow buried items of ordnance from past and current military land usage. The Contractor will utilise technology and procedures developed during military and civilian demining work across the world.

Due to the undulating and uneven terrain at the site, the Contractor will provide two UXO Engineers utilising man-portable survey equipment (Figure 2) carry out an electro-magnetic survey in addition to the detailed visual survey.

The UXO Engineers will use the Ebinger Magnex 120LW, Upex 740M or Schonstedt G92 magnetometer to locate metallic anomalies (potential UXO) to an estimated survey depth of 1m. The actual survey depth will depend on ground conditions and will be confirmed by the engineer at the time of the survey.

Mapping and Survey Reporting

The site will be broken down into small, manageable areas for survey planning using desktop mapping software. Each area will then be systematically surveyed using the above method.

Differential GPS and hand-held GPS mapping equipment will be utilised to ensure the survey area is accurately recorded. This will be collated and incorporated into the final report and UXO clearance status certificate.

Assumptions

- Visual survey will be conducted wherever possible.
- Electromagnetic survey will be conducted over the entire survey area to detect shallow buried munitions.
- The area to be surveyed should be accessible, free from obstructions, dense undergrowth and reinforced concrete.
- If any part(s) of the area are land-scaped above original ground level or have substantial levels of made ground the non-intrusive survey may be affected. The site should be as free as possible from other metallic contamination.
- The UXO survey team can only survey, visually and by electromagnetic means, the areas which can be safely accessed on foot.

UXO Disposal

Target Identification

Items of ordnance visually identified during the survey will be examined by an experienced and qualified ex-military Bomb disposal Officer. Items confirmed as live or blind but assessed as safe to move will be moved to a pre-nominated area for later disposal.

Any item assessed as live or blind but not safe to move will be cordoned off to prevent access and a request for military Bomb Disposal assistance will be placed through the Police.

Buried items

Where necessary an intrusive investigation to the maximum depth of 1m will be conducted on all anomalies matching the criteria of potential UXO. The criteria for investigation is based on target mass and depth and will take account of the local geology. Target investigation will take place as the survey progresses and will be supervised by the UXO supervisor.

The investigation will be carried out as a controlled operation in accordance with a stand-alone Method Statement. The UXO engineer will be experienced in UXO investigation operations and be equipped with sensitive hand-held magnetometers to pinpoint the anomalies plotted during the survey.

Any item of UXO found will be fully risk assessed and appropriate action taken to deal with the ordnance in the safest possible recognised manner.

Disposal

In the UK, all Bomb Disposal activity is the responsibility of the Police. Outside of the M25 area, this is devolved to the military under 'Military Aid to the Civil Power' (MACP).

Military bomb disposal assets are tasked and controlled on behalf of the Police by the Joint Service Explosive Ordnance Disposal Operations Centre (JSEODOC) in Didcot.

Disposal of items of munitions will be conducted by military Bomb Disposal units via a request from the Police. The Contractor will liaise with the Bomb Disposal teams as required to aid with the safe disposal of any UXO.

This may be on a one-off basis for items assessed as not safe to move and that may cause an immediate hazard or on a routine basis where items assessed as safe to move can be stockpiled into a secure area for collection and disposal by a military Bomb Disposal unit.

A secure area will need to be maintained in which to store items of ordnance until they can be collected by the relevant authorities.

There is no cost for the deployment of military Bomb Disposal assets.

Hazards

Advers
Advers are present, take care not to disturb, especially in Spring, in the unlikely event of a bite seek immediate medical attention.
- wear caps and don't panic, spider bites are rarely deadly
- keep other limbs as still as possible to prevent venom spreading
- remove jewellery, watches from bitten limb and loosen clothing

Lymes Disease (Ticks)
Ticks may be found in areas of scrub or grass. Wear long trousers and inspect exposed skin before and after your visit.
Ticks can be easily removed with tweezers, grasp the as close to skin as possible and pull out slowly. Do not use a hot iron, alcohol or nail polish.

Unexploded Ordnance
The reserve was used as a firing range in the Second World War. If you encounter any unexploded ordnance please do not disturb, note location and report to the Reserve Manager and the Police.
Avoid trees in high wind, tasks might be suspended by Reserve Manager in extreme weather. Please note that grazing animals may be present within mobile compartments.
