1. Background to Requirement

ISIS is a world-leading centre for research in the physical and life sciences at the UKRI-STFC Rutherford Appleton Laboratory (RAL, the 'Agency') near Oxford.

ISIS is an intense pulsed neutron source providing beams of neutrons and muons to enable scientists to study the structure and properties of matter for the benefit of Science and Engineering in the UK and abroad. Our suite of neutron and muon instruments gives unique insights into the properties of materials on the atomic scale.

We support a national and international community of more than 3,000 scientists for research into subjects ranging from clean energy and the environment, pharmaceuticals, and health care, through to nanotechnology and materials engineering, catalysis, and polymers, and on to fundamental studies of materials.

ISIS facility is formed by a LINAC and a proton synchrotron accelerator that delivers an 800 MeV proton beam to 2 different tungsten-based targets where the 2 intense pulsed neutron sources are created. Next to each target there are about 20 beamlines where the scientists perform their experiments.

In order to monitor the radiation generated in the different areas of ISIS, the ISIS Health Physics (IHP) staff (located at RAL) use portable instruments dedicated for ionisation radiation detection which requires periodic checks. These instruments are used to measure radioactive contamination (alpha and beta particles) and ionisation radiation (in gamma, X-ray, or neutron field, or in a mixture of them). The Contracting Authority is looking for bidders capable of performing the required calibration checks for all the portable instruments used by IHP.

2. Introduction

ISIS Health Physics Section (IHP) requires that the instruments used for ionisation radiation detection have to be checked and calibrated periodically by a certified UKAS laboratory.

Current quantity levels of the type of instruments is:

- Alpha & beta: 45 instruments
- Gamma & X-rays: 240 instruments
- Neutron: 30 instruments

Note – current quantity levels maybe subject to slight variances in the future.

The Bidder should have a quality assurance management system implemented and the capacity of performing this kind of instruments calibration (including the evaluation of any repair if it is needed and repair it on behalf of the Contracting Authority). Also, the Bidder should be capable of managing the carriage instrumentation for any given quantity (from the instrumentation list given in the paragraph #5 'Present list of instruments' below and the instruments weight specified in 2 categories as follows:
