Introduction

Eco-labels can guide environmentally conscientious customers to select products and services based on trustworthy environmental and social criteria. This informs purchasing decisions by providing information on environmental footprint of how the products have been manufactured and produced, which is often opaque and complex due to global supply chains. It remains challenging to make sustainable purchase decisions for most of customers.

To date, there are currently no internationally agreed standards for environmental sustainability labelling, and with around 460 eco labels globally there is a growing need for a consistency framework informed by environmental science data to help customers to understand genuinely environmentally friendly products¹. In addition, there is no agreed measures of product sustainability, e.g., greenhouse gas emission, water use and biodiversity impact etc². As such, the Chief Scientific Officer at Food Standard Agency (FSA) has recently urged an urgent introduction to an eco-labelling system through collaboration between business, academia and government, so that the food system can be set on a path to sustainability. He explained “Transforming the food system into one that is fully sustainable relies on a unified approach to data sharing and food labelling that is both transparent and accurate. The eco-labelling of foods, for example, can enable consumers to compare the environmental footprint of different products and enable them to make choices about the impact this has on their diet. This requires unprecedented level of collaboration between business, academia and government. Developing a single (eco-label) system will require close coordination between business, an enhanced assurance capability for regulators and expert input from behaviour science to be sure the end product is clearly and accurately understood by consumers”. He highlighted “there is a golden opportunity now for businesses to work together with each other and the public sector in order to create a coherent voluntary scheme that can be easily morphed into a mandatory one in due course”.³ A mandatory food nutrient label has helped to drive business changes (e.g., reformulation) and made it easier for public to make better informed food choices.

In fact, urgent progress on a unified eco-labelling system is also needed for other business sectors to help prevent greenwashing⁴, achieve Net Zero legislation by 2050, support UK’s clean growth and maintain our planetary health. For instance, EU’s new strategy for sustainable and circular textiles will help empower consumers by providing clearer information on textiles.⁵ In addition, Henkel, L’Oréal, LVMH, Natura &Co, and Unilever announce a new global collaboration to co-develop an industry-wide environmental impact assessment and scoring system for cosmetics products. The aim is to co-design an approach that is brand-agnostic, and which provides consumers with clear, transparent and comparable environmental impact information, based on a common science-based methodology.⁶ The UK’s Net Zero Strategy published in October 2021 also contains a number of ambitions around product labelling as part of the commitment to empower businesses and the public to make green choices. A unified eco-label system backed by research rigor poses a golden opportunity for companies from various business sector to win customers trust, achieve Net Zero legislative commitments and share learnings in the space of eco-labels between companies and sectors to drive clean growth.

Aims

The purpose of this procurement is to appoint a provider or a consortium of experts to provide economic appraisal related to implementing a unified eco-label framework and system across UK to inform an economic case as part of developing a successful business case based on HM Treasury's five-part business case model⁷ to secure potential government investment in developing a precompetitive, multi/inter-disciplinary research and innovation programme that will support the development of a unified eco-labelling system or framework, either sector agnostic or sector specific, to drive environmental sustainability by providing science validated customer information on purchasing choices and drive business green growth, e.g. circularity.

It is intended that the outputs of this tender will provide a structure and content (for example but not limited to economic costs and benefits of developing a unified eco-labelling system, either sector agnostic or sector(s) specific that can be readily converted into an economic case as part of a successful business case for securing new public and private investment in establishing a precompetitive multidisciplinary research and innovation to address knowledge gaps and advance this area in a whole-systems approach.

Objectives

Via this independent work, UKRI NERC is seeking to understand the market drivers and failures, existing capability within the UK and strategic opportunities of precompetitive research and innovation can help overcome barriers and advance the development and implementation of sector agnostic eco-labels with a focus on environmental science in a whole-systems and multi/inter-disciplinary approach.

NERC is particularly interested in identifying research and innovation gaps where environmental science can inform solutions, either directly or as a framework for wider interdisciplinary research, which would contribute towards a new whole-systems approach in this area, e.g. development of sector specific or agnostic eco-labels. To that end, the work undertaken should involve a literature review, horizon scanning and broader foresight methodologies and stakeholder engagement to secure commitment to collaborate. Research questions should include:

- What is the role and purpose of eco-labelling in the journey to net zero?
- What are consumers' attitudes/preferences towards eco-labels?
- How successful have existing eco-label trials been? What are the key factors contributing to their success or failure?
- What potential is there for future eco-labels to be successful?
- What are businesses' attitudes/preferences towards eco-labels?

Objective 1: Develop a compelling economic appraisal (up-to-twelve-page report with a up-to page executive summary accompanied by a set of presentations slides) to inform a successful business case to secure new public (following the HM Treasury's five-part business model)^{8,9} and private investment on developing a broad, multidisciplinary research and innovation programme as part of a systems approach to develop sector agnostic or specific eco-labels to inform customer purchase decisions to drive sustainability, should a new funding opportunity arises in the future. Examples of previous opportunities include Industrial Strategy Challenge Fund¹⁰ and Strategic Priority Fund¹¹.

An Economic Appraisal that can feed into an Economic Case as part of a business case should appropriate funding arise: The Economic Appraisal should include details of the following:

- Is there a reasonable range of options in the long & short lists?
- Is ruling out of potential promising options clearly justified?
- Are all economic costs and benefits clearly calculated for each year covered by the proposal with NPV calculated correctly (see below)?

- Is distributional analysis needed, who benefits, who pays?
- Are all costs and benefits quantified, if not is this justified?
- Are there any decisive unquantified cost/benefits and are they clearly explained?
- Are there appropriate sensitivity analyses, including worst case scenario?
- Are results of each option presented clearly including do nothing/minimum option?
- Are risks, constraints and dependencies identified and managed?
- Is optimism bias properly included and aligned with risk?
- Are wider impacts assessed e.g. sustainability, competition, regulatory impact?
- Is there a Benefits register; benefits realisation (delivery) plan?
- If PFI involved is tax properly treated and is risk transfer clearly achieved?
- Is best VfM = max NPV and if not do unquantified benefits justify the cost?
- Exchequer impact calculated separately and not included in NPV!
- Are monitoring and evaluation costs included?

Notes on NPV calculation key issues (if in doubt, consult an economist)

- Correct discount rate (3.5% real).
- Figures in real terms/constant prices at base year, sunk costs excluded.
- Opportunity costs of already-owned assets included.
- Residual values included.
- Double counting avoided.
- Transfer costs / benefits excluded.
- Uses only economic resource costs (payment good/service).
- Financing items/sources excluded.
- Second round effects included (e.g. only genuine job creation).
- Tax/subsidy treatment must be non-distorting between options.

Objective 2: Produce a logic model or a theory of change to illustrate why public investment in precompetitive and multi-/inter-disciplinary research and innovation for a unified eco-labelling system informed by environmental science is necessary and how it will deliver tangible benefits to the UK by addressing market failures and barriers to change and reflecting on review and recommendations from a Parliament Select Committee.¹² Produce a monitoring and evaluation framework should funding be secured to develop a research and innovation programme. Details of theory of change can be found via: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-magenta-book>.

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this deliverable with a one-page A4 logic model, a draft submitted as part of the interim reports due in January 2023 and final reports due by 15th March 2023.

Objective 3: Produce a synthesis report of key findings and recommendations (and their progress) of existing reports (both private and public as well as both UK and international) relevant to eco-labels, focusing on environmental sustainability. Highlight key stakeholders for the development and implementation of eco-labels for customer information and environmental sustainability and their roles for co-creating precompetitive research and innovation activities. Areas of focus should include (but are not limited to:

- Identifying and analysing the outcomes of eco/labelling approaches and designs, across a range of sectors and objectives, using criteria tbc - e.g. level of behaviour change and/or impact, feasibility, cost-effectiveness, industry improvement incentive
- Exploring which sectors could be grouped under one cross-cutting eco-label, and which would need to be separate
- Exploring which metrics and indicators eco-labels should use/display – e.g. beyond carbon emissions, also biodiversity, water usage etc.
- Exploring the technical feasibility of the development and rollout of eco-labels, including a checklist for eco-label development (include market transformation effects of eco-labelling? Cost to consumers?)
- Recommendations on what it would take for eco-labels to change behaviour – including where/how they should be sequenced or aligned with other interventions, and how they should be presented

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this deliverable with interim reports submitted in January 2023 and a final report (a maximum of ten pages) including an executive summary and outputs (such as a presentation set, supporting documents and data, and a summary output of stakeholder engagement) submitted by 15th March 2023.

Objective 4:

- 4.1 Analyse the current approach to eco-labelling across businesses sectors and UK government departments and regulators in order to:
- identify market failures, barriers to change, gaps and implications of new market trends and drives and government policies. Based on the above, recommend opportunities where a pre-competitive research and innovation programme across disciplines but with a focus on environmental science can address the challenges as part of a whole-system solutions.
 - assess the sector demand and priority research questions in the space of environmental science to inform the development of a unified approach to eco-labelling
 - produce a summary report (including executive summary) detailing the outputs of objective 4.1 and including: Business-led challenges and interventions (both public and private) required for the precompetitive research and innovation activities. Recommendation on the priorities with justifications, such as relevant international literatures, initiatives and good practice related to building a unified approach to eco-labelling informed by environmental science.

Justification can also include published reports, sector analysis, patents, papers, ONS information, other government information, websites, social media and grey literature which stands for manifold document types produced on all levels of government, academics, business and industry in print and electronic formats that are protected by intellectual property rights, of sufficient quality to be collected and preserved by libraries and institutional repositories, but not controlled by commercial publishers; i.e. where publishing is not the primary activity of the producing body." Examples of grey literature includes conference abstracts, presentations, proceedings; regulatory data; unpublished trial data; government publications; reports (such as white papers, working papers, internal documentation); dissertations/theses; patents and policies & procedures.¹³ relevant international literatures, initiatives and good practice related to eco-labelling.

This can also include more direct interaction across sectors, including interviews and workshops. Please note that it is the contractor's responsibility to source the data.

4.2 Identify and map key stakeholders across the sector and make recommendations on how to secure their commitment to co-create intervention or implement recommendations as outlined above in objective

4.1.

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this deliverable with interim reports submitted in January 2023 and a up to six-page final summary reports including an executive summary (up to two page) and outputs (such as a presentation set, supporting documents and data), and all contact detailers of all stakeholders interviewed or engaged and associated interview and meeting notes submitted by 15th March 2023.

Scope

Within scope:

- Sector agnostic eco-labelling , validated by research, to inform customer purchasing decisions and drive environmental sustainability and business clean growth.
- The initial focus should be across the full spectrum of sector agnostic eco-labelling, with possibly further narrowing down to focused business sectors based on justification and selection criteria agreed by NERC throughout the process.
- Through a systems lens with a focus on the environmental economics and sectors' environmental impact throughout the entire supply chain.
- UK-focused but contextualised against international stakeholders and the entire supply chain within and outside of the UK.

Some aspects of the scope above may be flexible; contingent on whether the supplier can make a convincing case during the course of the project that a given aspect must be within scope to deliver a whole-systems approach.

It is expected that this project will be delivered through a mix of desk-based research and stakeholder engagement. UKRI is open to tenders that offer innovative suggestions. Given the wide scope of the specification, UKRI are open to consortium, multi-supplier bids.

Timetable & Payments

- Project kick off meeting: Within one week after contract being signed

- Final report: 15th March 2023

Contract end date and final payment: 30th March 2023

UKRI and NERC maintain a conflicts of interest policy. Applicants must identify and report conflicts of interest.
