Annex B

GUIDELINES ON PARTY POLITICAL INVOLVEMENT OF STAFF

The management committee of the organisation should not align itself with any particular political party. The staff of the organisation, whatever their private political beliefs, are expected to avoid being identified in their professional role with any particular political party. A good deal of personal judgement is therefore involved and accordingly the following guidelines are intended for the use of all staff:-

- i) Staff should not be identified, in their work, with any political party or allow any personal political beliefs to improperly influence the work for which they are paid.
- ii) Community work practice usually requires staff to support and assist activities, which arise from within the community itself. Staff may stimulate or induce community initiatives but they should not proceed unless there is a clear and substantial support for those proposals from within the community with which they are working.
- iii) It is an accepted part of community work practice to supply information and advice impartially to all groups engaged in affecting public policies and programmes. It is likewise accepted that staff are not responsible for the political activities of independent autonomous groups with which they may be working.
- iv) In so far as any activity is concerned, staff should not use the name of the organisation in party political demonstrations or for the purposes of party political propaganda.
