Cost Proposal

Facilitate a face-to-face expert workshop, convening industry representatives and key independent experts to explore the implications of alternative cost scenarios. The final approach will be informed by analysis of consultation responses, and will include consideration of at least two alternative obligation scenarios to be agreed with Defra, example:

- all large companies are obligated to comply with DD legislation;
- all companies are obligated but with differentiated burdens of proof of DD dependent on their position in the supply chain; and
- the DD obligation is placed only on the company placing the commodity on the UK market for the first time.

The scenarios used will be defined in discussion between Defra and Efeca. The overall aim of this exercise is to explore potential costs/benefits to business to support Impact Assessment drafting, building on feedback from the consultation.

For each scenario the following will be considered and explored through an in person meeting:

- What evidence will be needed (to demonstrate due diligence)
- Availability of information, at different stages in the supply chain (how much is new or additional to current practices)
- Likely increase in cost, where does the cost increase come from what is the significance of any cost increase
- Likely effectiveness of impact vs. cost
- Potential for customer impact (cost)
- Potential for producer impact (cost)
- Unintended consequences (e.g., sourcing is simply displaced)
- Other

Cost Proposal

Undertake preliminary research to learn from similar legislative processes, and identify existing actions that could be used to inform the process of establishing baselines and monitoring future impacts, and thus draw from this to provide a preliminary scope of potential indicators.

Key activities will include:

1. Reviewing and drawing out lessons for monitoring and evaluating impacts from other similar legislation. This should include existing legislation (for example the EU TR (looking at the FLEGT Fitness Check for example), the duty of vigilance in France, EU and US Conflict Minerals regulation) alongside current developing proposals including the developing EU proposal, Schatz's law etc. Analysis should consider the goal or expected aim and impacts, criteria and indicators used, 3rd party perspectives and relevant learnings. Given time limitations this work will be based on desktop review not external interviews.
2. Reviewing available 'tools' currently measuring and monitoring deforestation impact (legal and illegal) through TRASE, JNCC, WRI. Review should consider the key tools, what they are aiming to measure and how.
3. Drawing from both of these, and building on the draft theory of change for the Due Diligence legislation, a top line consideration of the expected aim of the UK DD legislation, and the direct and indirect potential measurable impacts. From this the potential indicators to monitor and verify/evaluate can be identified. At this stage the output would be top line rather than detailed indicators.
4. Undertaking initial exploration to establish relevant baselines. This should be considered as part of the above and be based on this collated information. Review should identify key facts or areas where this baseline could be drawn rather than being a baseline study per se.

Deliverable

- A short M&E research report summarising findings against each of the key activities outlined above. Given the time limitations this would not we would not be expected to get as far as a proposal for a set of key performance indicators/data sets or definitive list of appropriate sources of evidence, but this research would be an important foundation for Defra to complete this work with a solid background and context to work from.

Annex 3 – Specification

Building the evidence based for due diligence legislation

Background

Defra's International Biodiversity and Climate Directorate (IBC) formed in September 2020. It has four Divisions and is collectively accelerating activity to protect and restore habitats and species to tackle both biodiversity loss and climate change. Within IBC the International Nature, Climate and Development Division aims to achieve tangible international action to protect biodiversity, mitigate and adapt to climate change, and reduce poverty.

IBC's Reducing Demand on Nature team work to end commodity-driven forest loss and land clearance through transitioning to sustainable supply chains, supporting producer-country efforts to protect their forests and raising global ambition to drive change at scale. A key element of this work is focused on the development and implementation of world-leading due diligence provisions within the Environment Act.

The due diligence provisions form part of a wider package of measures to improve the sustainability of our supply chains and will contribute to global efforts to protect forests and other ecosystems. These provisions will make it illegal for larger businesses operating in the UK to use key forest risk commodities produced on land illegally occupied or used. Businesses in scope will also be required to undertake a due diligence exercise on their supply chains and to report on this exercise annually. To ensure transparency, information about businesses' due diligence exercises will be published. Businesses in scope that do not comply with these requirements may be subject to fines and other civil sanctions.

Secondary legislation is required to implement the due diligence provisions, and Defra will also publish guidance to businesses on how to comply with regulations. An ongoing public consultation is seeking views on some of the key areas that will be included within this, notably:

- which commodities will be in scope of regulations
- which businesses will be subject to provisions
- what businesses in scope will be required to undertake and report on regarding their due diligence exercise
- how the requirements will be enforced

To complement the consultation process, further research is required to address a number of outstanding evidence gaps. The aim of this assignment is to address these identified priority evidence gaps to support the finalisation of the due diligence provisions.

Objective and Scope

Defra's Reducing Demand on Nature team in INCD is looking to employ an external consultant to undertake this work.

The overarching objective of this assignment is to undertake research to further develop the evidence base in support of the forthcoming due diligence provisions. This work should build upon existing analysis and will ultimately help to inform future policy development and delivery.

Key research areas include:

Workstream 1 - The potential cost associated with the proposed due diligence legislation.

Workstream 2 - Identifying indicators to monitor and evaluate the future impact of the proposed legislation. This should include suggesting potential key performance indicators including baselines and targets and indicative data sets and appropriate sources of evidence to monitor and measure future progress.

Proposed approach

It is anticipated that these research areas will be addressed through a combination of expert meetings, engagement with industry stakeholders, and desk-based research.

1. The potential cost associated with the proposed due diligence legislation.

Facilitate an expert meeting convening industry representatives and key independent experts to explore the implications of alternative cost scenarios. The final approach will be informed by analysis of consultation responses, and will include consideration of at least two alternative obligation scenarios. For example:

- all large companies are obligated to comply with DD legislation;
- all companies are obligated but with differentiated burdens of proof of DD dependent on their position in the supply chain; and
- the DD obligation is placed on the company placing the commodity on the UK market for the first time.

The overall aim of this exercise is to explore potential costs/benefits to business to support Impact Assessment drafting, building on feedback from the consultation.

For each scenario the following will be considered and explored through an in person meeting:

- What evidence will be needed (to demonstrate due diligence)
- Availability of information, at different stages in the supply chain (how much is new or additional to current practices)
- Likely increase in cost, where does the cost increase come from what is the significance of any cost increase
- Likely effectiveness of impact vs. cost
- Potential for customer impact (cost)
- Potential for producer impact (cost)
- Unintended consequences (e.g., sourcing is simply displaced)
- Other

2. Identifying indicators to monitor and evaluate the future impact of the proposed legislation.

Undertake preliminary research to learn from similar legislative processes, and identify existing actions that could be used to inform the process of establishing baselines and monitoring future impacts, and thus draw from this to provide a preliminary scope of potential indicators.

Key activities will include:

- Reviewing and drawing out lessons for monitoring and evaluating impacts from other similar legislation. This should include existing legislation (for example the EU TR (looking at the FLEGT Fitness Check for example), the duty of vigilance in France, EU and US Conflict Minerals regulation) alongside current developing proposals including the developing EU proposal, Schatz's law etc. Analysis should consider the goal or expected aim and impacts, criteria and indicators used, and relevant learnings.

- Drawing from both of these, and building on the draft theory of change for the Due Diligence legislation, a top line consideration of the expected aim of the UK DD legislation, and the direct and indirect potential measurable impacts. From this the potential indicators to monitor and verify/evaluate can be identified. At this stage the output would be top line rather than detailed indicators.
- Undertaking initial exploration to establish relevant baselines. This should be considered as part of the above and be based on this collated information. Analysis should identify key facts or areas where this baseline could be drawn, rather than being a baseline study per se.

Recipient

The recipient for this piece of work is the Reducing Demand on Nature Team of INCD.

Deliverables

The precise nature and timing of the deliverables will be finalised in discussion with the consultants, but will include:

- An expert meeting as outlined in workstream 1.
- Expert meeting report documenting key discussions and themes on each of the points outlined above, for each of the selected scenarios.
- A short M&E research report summarising findings against each of the key activities outlined in workstream 2. Given the time limitations we wouldn't expect to get as far as a proposal for a set of key performance indicators/data sets or definitive list of appropriate sources of evidence, but this research would be an important foundation for you to complete this work with a solid background and context to work from.

Budget

Timing and Milestones

The work should start on Tuesday 1st March and be completed by 31st March.

The expert meeting should be held in week commencing 24th March with the final workshop report submitted by 31st March.

The final monitoring and evaluation research report should be submitted by 31st March.

It is anticipated that the consultant will hold weekly calls with the Defra contract manager to provide updates on progress, areas key concerns and delivery risk.
