Annex 1 – Authorised Processing Template

Annex 2 – Specification

Below is the Authority's specification advertised within the Bidder Pack published on 18th August 2023.

1.1. Background

Climate change does and will increasingly impact protected sites for biodiversity. The changing distribution and abundance of species and the timing of ecological events are resulting in changes to the structure and function of communities. Our protected site network and future Protected Site Strategies need to take this increasing dynamism into account.

Natural England has implemented a SSSI Future Reforms (SSSIFR) project to investigate whether the statutory framework for Sites of Special Scientific Interest (SSSIs) supports the natural world's increasing dynamism as it responds to climate change, or if the legal framework needs to evolve to better protect habitats and species during rapid ecological change. Natural England's Action Plan for 2022/23 commits to investing in the reform of some of our statutory duties, including the way that we designate SSSIs.

To support adaptation, a key SSSIFR aim is to understand how SSSIs fit within and contribute to resilient, functioning landscapes and the Nature Recovery Network (NRN). This is supported by Defra's 25 Year Environment Plan which highlights six key objectives, one being that 'we will achieve a growing and resilient network of land, water and sea that is richer in plants and wildlife' (Defra 2018).

The basis of any nature network is provided by a set of core sites in which the conservation of biodiversity is the primary purpose (Crick et al. 2020) e.g. the SSSI series. Research has shown that protected sites are integral to the resilience of ecological networks, supporting the persistence of species under threat and promoting the colonisation and spread of species in response to climate change (Gillingham et al. 2015). Such a network needs to have a suite of core sites that are:

- 'comprehensive' (including the full range of valued biodiversity),
- 'adequate' (capable of supporting viable populations in the long term) and
- 'representative' (sampling species, assemblages, ecosystems from throughout their geographic ranges) (Wilson et al. 2009).

To enhance resilience to climate change, the suite of core sites also needs to incorporate the following:

a) Big enough: SSSIs need to be big enough to be able to function well ecologically, with natural hydrological processes and rich food webs, so that they are more resilient. They should be at least >40 ha, ideally >100 ha in size (Crick et al. 2020).

b) Natural Function: encouraging naturally functioning ecosystems is the best means of achieving resilient ecosystems and allows auto-adaptation by sites without constant management interventions. This needs to consider the 5 pillars of natural ecosystem functioning: hydrology, nutrient status, soil/sediment processes, vegetation controls (e.g. grazing) and species composition (Mainstone et al. 2018).

c) The most sensitive: Not all habitats and ecosystems are the same when it comes to the threat climate change poses. Habitat creation, restoration, maintenance and resilience-supporting actions should focus on those most likely to be lost or degraded, such as montane, coastal, freshwater and wetland habitats.

d) Refugia: Prioritising protection and restoration in areas identified as being potential climatic refugia for species, such as landscapes with high levels of topographic heterogeneity, will help species and habitats to persist despite changes in climatic and habitat suitability in surrounding areas (Suggitt et al. 2014).

e) Connectivity: improvements in connectivity (whether by softening the surrounding matrix, creating “stepping stones” or corridors) is important at a range of spatial scales, but particularly to support south to north and altitudinal movements, to allow the redistribution of species with climate change. Areas which may not currently contain features of interest may need protecting to enhance connectivity (Travers et al. 2021).

The Government recognises that in order to recover nature (plus enhance ecological resilience and adaptation) we need to improve our existing network of protected sites and other wildlife-rich habitats, providing a greater area of better-connected, higher-quality habitat, and we need to do this in a planned way to ensure that investment can be targeted strategically. Potential shifts in species ranges resulting from climate change, present an additional challenge to implementing a comprehensive network of protected sites that will benefit biodiversity in the future (Groves et al. 2012). To support strategic planning of SSSI designations in response to challenges posed by climate change, we would like to explore the potential of Systematic Conservation Planning (SCP) as a tool to support decision making around prioritising SSSI designations to support an adaptive, ecologically coherent nature network in England. Planning SSSI designations using a more systematic approach to address current network inefficiencies while also incorporating expected future changes would have clear benefits.

Allied to the findings of this research will be insights into future prioritisation of Protected Site Strategies. The research will also consider how future Protected Site Strategies that address a range of pressures can be designed to make best use of the SCP methodology applied to the future SSSI designation programme.

SCP is an approach that has been used throughout the world to identify the optimal location of areas for biodiversity conservation (Margules & Pressey, 2000). SCP is an evidence- and consultative-led approach to identifying the priority areas for conservation within an area (Groves & Game, 2016). It is based on three basic principles. First, it involves stakeholders developing a shared vision of what aspects of the environment are important in different places; this can include non-biodiversity elements, such as key areas for agriculture or human settlement. Second, it sets numerical targets for how much of each important biodiversity element should be conserved, making the planning process more transparent, and more open to stakeholder involvement. Third, it uses complementarity-based methods to select sites, such that the selection of SSSIs is based on how much they add to the existing suite of sites, rather than how much of each feature they contain. There are a number of well-established spatial prioritisation tools that help planners to identify priority areas efficiently, and the two most widely used ones are Marxan (Ball et al. 2009) and Zonation (Moilanen et al. 2005).

A core of nature sites supporting an adaptive, ecologically coherent network may need to consider other objectives as well as biodiversity interests, including ecosystem services, net zero targets and access to nature, as well as balance other land use interests. It is difficult to provide a transparent and objective way to do this that will satisfy the range of stakeholders; however, SCP is just such a potential tool.

1.2. Project Aim

The aim of this project is to test the SCP approach on the terrestrial SSSI designation programme at a national scale. Also to consider potential use of the SCP approach as applied to SSSI designation for prioritisation of future locally-based Protected Site Strategies which address a variety of pressures on Protected Sites (link to NE blogpost). The SSSI designation programme is concerned with land identified for inclusion in the terrestrial SSSI designation programme by Natural England for inclusion in the SSSI series, based on its opinion that the land may be of 'special interest' by reason of its wildlife (habitats and species) geology, and/or geomorphology. This project will explore SCP's utility to assess how well the current SSSI series, and the currently proposed and potential future SSSI designations support the series ecological coherence and adaptation to climate change through strategic prioritisation, based on 1 a-e (the criteria for ensuring climate change resilience of protected sites, pages 20-21) and current and future climate projections. The current SSSI designation programme includes proposals for coastal, alkaline fen, woodland & parkland, lowland grassland and heathland habitats, plus bird, bat, vascular plant and waxcap fungi species.

SCP has rarely been used to plan conservation on land in England but was used very successfully to identify the set of potential European Marine Protected Areas (Smith et al. 2009). Critchlow et al. (2022) compared spatial prioritisation results across 18 taxa combined with projected future (2080) distributions to assess the potential impact of climate change on Protected Area network effectiveness, to find that priority conservation areas were similar among multiple taxa, despite considerable differences in spatial species richness patterns. Consequently, there is great potential for its use in England, given the complexities of the land-uses present in the country and the wide range of pressures on the land for its future use, particularly in the face of climate change, and with clear applications to Natural England's national-level planning.

1.3. Project Objectives and tasks

Following on from the description of the project aim above, the objectives are to:

Undertake a national-scale SCP exercise based on 1 a–e to identify priority areas supporting species adaptation to climate change, for all species combined, but also for suitable broad taxonomic groupings and for rare species e.g. utilising species data analyses by Critchlow et al. (2022).

Undertake a national-scale SCP exercise based on 1 a–e to identify priority areas supporting habitat and ecosystem adaptation to climate change e.g. utilising CEH/NE habitat network and potential mapping.

- Use the national SCP results to explore how well the current SSSI network and SSSI designation pipeline provides coverage of areas that support ecological coherence and adaptation to climate change.
- Use the national SCP results to explore how the designation pipeline might need to be modified in the light of potential future climate change.

- Use the national SCP results to explore how future Protected Site Strategies could be prioritised in part through considerations revealed through the SCP methodology.

The following tasks will need to be completed as part of this contract. While the proposed tasks are provided here, methods have been left open in some cases for potential contractors to make suggestions on the proposed methodology and underpinning data. Much of the work will require close working with Natural England staff to develop the project, access relevant datasets and interpret the results.

Contractors should explain which SCP tools they would use and why, how they would be used, what datasets they would need and how they would be obtained, and any associated costs.

National-scale use of Systematic Conservation Planning techniques

Collate relevant datasets for SCP analysis (refer to list below)

Use SCP approaches to identify priority SSSI designations for biodiversity adaptation to climate change in England, based on 1 a-e and features submitted to the designation pipeline, using species data, data on priority habitats and information from other Natural England projects such as the Climate Change Refugia Project.

Compare the results of the SCP analysis with the existing SSSI series and those sites currently in the designations programme or in the longer list of potential sites, to identify where there are gaps in current coverage and potential for extending existing sites, in relation to 1 a-e. Also informing the Nature Recovery Network and Local Nature Recovery Strategies for developing a functional Network of Ecologically connected sites.

Test the integration of national scale data sets on other variables of social relevance, such urbanisation, infrastructure, national flood management, carbon storage etc. and include them where possible/appropriate within the SCP analysis, in consultation with the project's steering group.

Natural England will be able to make available a wide range of its spatial data for potential inclusion in the SCP mapping exercises, in standard GI formats (see <http://naturalengland-defra.opendata.arcgis.com/> for details). This includes data on priority habitats, habitat restoration potential (and associated maps on habitat fragmentation etc.), outputs from SCP analyses e.g. Critchlow et al. (2022), climate change refugia, protected areas, Land Cover 2020 etc. Natural England will also provide advice on the national tree and peat strategies and ELMS. Access to Local Record Centre biodiversity data, where required, will have to be costed into the proposal.

It is anticipated that the following datasets are likely to be included:

- SSSI designation programme list (NE)
- Climate Envelope mapping e.g. species data analyses by Critchlow et al. (2022)
- Climate Habitat Sensitivity mapping
- Carbon Storage and Sequestration mapping (NE)
- Refugia

- CondatIS
- Priority habitats inventory (NE)
- Biological Records Centre data via the NBN
- Habitat Network and Potential Maps (CEH/NE)
- National and County (& City) Regional Natural Capital Atlas (NE)
- Living England habitat map (NE) Land Cover Map (CEH)
- People in Nature Survey
- Others listed in the Nature Networks Evidence Handbook (Crick et al. 2020)

However, tenderers should indicate which datasets (including these and any others) they are likely to use and how they will access them.

1.4. Required products

An interim report submitted in draft form to the Authority by 29th February 2024. The interim report will summarise progress to date and provide evidence of progress with the tasks submitted in the tender for the work and agreed with the project steering group at the commencement of the project. An overall report, summarising in detail aims, methods, results and discussion. This should include recommendations for how SCP will be used as part of the development of strategic prioritisation of SSSI designations in relation to climate change adaptation, plus ecological coherence, as well as technical aspects regarding which spatial datasets are most useful when considering both biodiversity [and ecosystem service components]. It also needs to include recommendations for how the SCP insights for future prioritisation of SSSI designations can inform future prioritisation of Protected Site Strategies.

The report must be completed to a standard and in a format suitable for publication as a Natural England Commissioned Report.

The findings of the research also need to be translated into a section of the Advisory Guidance for Protected Site Strategies.

Opportunities should be taken for submitting papers resulting from this research for publication in peer-reviewed journals and for giving talks at scientific conferences. Any papers produced would be co-authored with Natural England.

Thus, the final report can include chapters that are written as draft papers, but with additional details included as chapter annexes.

Separate sets of layered maps and conclusions/recommendations for the study area (National), in a format suitable for sharing internally and with conservation initiatives in those areas. The data should be in a form suitable for Natural England's GIS requirements (vector or raster GIS outputs that we can open, view, analyse and use in ArcGIS Pro, ArcGIS Online (AGOL) and for recording R script/Python model processing steps and spatial outputs record in an R Markdown Technical Doc or similar).

Develop an Interactive Web App for sharing outputs with NE National Protected Sites and Nature Recovery Teams, Area Team Site and Local Nature Recovery Strategies (LNRS) advisors. Informing also Protected Site Strategies (PSS) and Species Conservation Strategies (SCS) and NE Stakeholders. This will put the data into the hands of those making decisions on SSSI expansions, new designations linking into LNRS and prioritisation of future Protected Site Strategies, Species Conservation Strategies for easy data sharing with landowners, Local Authorities and other stakeholders.

Delivery of a webinar of the results of the project for Natural England staff and recommendations for use of the mapping outputs including Key Teams Protected sites, Climate Change and Nature Recovery National Teams for informing SSSI designation planning. Plus engagement with targeted LNRS and PSS advisors in the Area Teams for informing Plans providing connectivity to local sites and PSS that address complex pressures on biodiversity and geodiversity as part of the Nature Recovery Network (NRN). The findings of the research will be incorporated within the Advisory Guidance for Protected Site Strategies which are due for completion in 2025.

Opportunities will also be sought for communicating results to a wider audience within the conservation sector, if appropriate. Tenders should suggest possible options.

3.4 Knowledge and skills required and data access

Knowledge and skills in the following areas will be needed to successfully carry out the project:

- Proven expertise in using and analysing spatial biodiversity and ecosystem services data.
- Proven expertise in the use of Systematic Conservation Planning software.
- Proven expertise in scientific publishing and in writing guidance material for conservation practitioners.
- The ability to work collaboratively with colleagues in other organisations.
- Good project planning and management skills.

Tenderers should indicate whether they have access to the necessary datasets, software and tools or whether this would need to be negotiated with current data holders.

3. How the Contract works

3.1 The Order Form is an offer by the Authority to purchase the Deliverables subject to and in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Contract.

3.2 The Supplier is deemed to accept the offer in the Order Form when the Authority receives a copy of the Order Form signed by the Supplier.

3.3 The Supplier warrants and represents that its Tender Submission and all statements made and documents submitted as part of the procurement of Deliverables are and remain true and accurate.

4. What needs to be delivered

4.1 All Deliverables

(a) The Supplier must provide Deliverables: (i) in accordance with the Specification and Tender Submission; (ii) to a professional standard; (iii) using all reasonable skill and care; (iv) using Good Industry Practice; (v) using its own policies, processes and internal quality control measures as long as they don't conflict with the Contract; (vi) in accordance with such policies and procedures of the Authority (as amended from time to time) that may be specified in the Contract (vii) on the dates agreed; and (viii) in compliance with all applicable Law.

(b) Without prejudice to the Specification the Supplier must provide Deliverables with a warranty of at least 90 days (or longer where the Supplier offers a longer warranty period to the Authority) from Delivery against all obvious damage or defects.

4.2 Goods clauses

- (a) All Goods Delivered must be capable of meeting the requirements set out in the Specification and be either (i) new and of recent origin, (ii) reused or (iii) recycled.
- (b) All manufacturer warranties covering the Goods will be assigned to the Authority on request and for free.
- (c) The Supplier transfers ownership of the Goods on completion of Delivery (including off-loading and stacking) or payment for those Goods, whichever is earlier.
- (d) Risk in the Goods transfers to the Authority on Delivery but remains with the Supplier if the Authority notices any damage or defect following Delivery and lets the Supplier know within three Working Days of Delivery.
- (e) The Supplier must have full and unrestricted ownership of the Goods at the time of transfer of ownership.
- (f) The Supplier must Deliver the Goods on the date and to the specified location during the Authority's working hours.
- (g) The Supplier, its subcontractor(s) and supply chain must minimise packaging used whilst providing sufficient packaging for the Goods to reach the point of Delivery safely and undamaged. The Supplier must take back any primary packaging where it is possible to do so. Packaging must be 100% re-usable, recyclable or compostable, use recycled content where reasonably practicable and support the Government's commitment to eliminate single use plastic.
- (h) All Deliveries must have a delivery note attached that specifies the order number, type, quantity of Goods, contact and details of traceability through the supply chain.
- (i) The Supplier must provide all tools, information and instructions the Authority needs to make use of the Goods. This will include, where appropriate, any operation manuals which, unless specified otherwise, will be written in English and provided in electronic form.
- (j) The Supplier will notify the Authority of any request that Goods are returned to it or the manufacturer after the discovery of safety issues or defects that might endanger health or hinder performance and shall indemnify the Authority against the costs arising as a result of any such request. Goods must be disposed of in line with the waste management hierarchy as set out in Law. The Supplier will provide evidence and transparency of the items and routes used for disposal to the Authority on request.

(k) The Authority can cancel any order or part order of Goods which have not been Delivered. If the Authority gives less than 14 calendar days' notice then it will pay the Supplier's reasonable and proven costs already incurred on the cancelled order as long as the Supplier takes all reasonable steps to minimise these costs.

(l) The Supplier must at its own cost repair, replace, refund or substitute (at the Authority's option and request) any Goods that the Authority rejects because they don't conform with clause 4.2. If the Supplier doesn't do this it will pay the Authority's costs including repair or re-supply by a third party.

(m) The Authority will not be liable for any actions, claims, costs and expenses incurred by the Supplier or any third party during Delivery of the Goods unless and to the extent that it is caused by negligence or other wrongful act of the Authority or its servant or agent. If the Authority suffers or incurs any damage or injury (whether fatal or otherwise) occurring in the course of Delivery or installation then the Supplier shall indemnify from all losses, damages, costs or expenses (including professional fees and fines) which arise as a result of or in connection with such damage or injury where it is attributable to any act or omission of the Supplier or, where related to the Contract, any of its subcontractors or suppliers.

4.3 Services clauses

(a) Late delivery of the Services will be a breach of the Contract.

(b) The Supplier must co-operate with the Authority and third party suppliers on all aspects connected with the delivery of the Services and ensure that Supplier Staff comply with any reasonable instructions including any security requirements.

(c) The Authority must provide the Supplier Staff with reasonable access to its premises at such reasonable times agreed with the Authority for the purpose of supplying the Services.

(f) The Supplier must take all reasonable care to ensure performance does not disrupt the Authority's operations, employees or other contractors.

(g) On completion of the Services, the Supplier is responsible for leaving the Authority's premises in a clean, safe and tidy condition and making good any damage that it has caused to the Authority's premises or property, other than fair wear and tear and any pre-existing cleanliness, safety or tidiness issue at the Authority's premises that existed before the commencement of the Term.

(h) The Supplier must ensure all Services, and anything used to deliver the Services, are of the required quality and free from damage or defects.

(i) The Authority is entitled to withhold payment for partially or undelivered Services or for Services which are not delivered in accordance with the Contract but doing so does not stop it from using its other rights under the Contract.

5. Pricing and payments

5.1 In exchange for the Deliverables delivered, the Supplier shall be entitled to invoice the Authority for the charges in Annex 3. The Supplier shall raise invoices promptly and in any event within 90 days from when the charges are due.

5.5 If there is a dispute between the Parties as to the amount invoiced, the Authority shall pay the undisputed amount. The Supplier shall not suspend the provision of the Deliverables unless the Supplier is entitled to terminate the Contract for a failure to pay undisputed sums in accordance with clause 11.6. Any disputed amounts shall be resolved through the dispute resolution procedure detailed in clause 35.

5.6 If any sum of money is recoverable from or payable by the Supplier under the Contract (including any sum which the Supplier is liable to pay to the Authority in respect of any breach of the Contract), that sum may be deducted unilaterally by the Authority from any sum then due, or which may become due, to the Supplier under the Contract or under any other agreement or contract with the Authority. The Supplier shall not be entitled to assert any credit, set-off or counterclaim against the Authority in order to justify withholding payment of any such amount in whole or in part.

5.7 The Supplier must ensure that its subcontractors and supply chain are paid, in full, within 30 days of receipt of a valid, undisputed invoice. If this doesn't happen, the Authority can publish the details of the late payment or non-payment.

6. The Authority's obligations to the Supplier

6.1 If the Supplier fails to comply with the Contract as a result of an Authority Cause:

- (b) as to the sustainability or health and safety conduct of the Supplier, subcontractors and supply chain in the performance of the Contract;

then the Authority may:

- (i) require that the Supplier provide to the Authority (for its approval) a plan setting out how the Supplier will ensure continued performance of the Contract (in the case of (a)) or improve its sustainability conduct or performance (in the case of (b)) and the Supplier will make changes to such plan as reasonably required by the Authority and once it is agreed then the Supplier shall act in accordance with such plan and report to the Authority on demand
