1. Introduction

The Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC) is part of UK Research and Innovation, non-departmental public body sponsored by the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS).

BBSRC invests in world-class bioscience research and training on behalf of the UK public. Our aim is to further scientific knowledge, to promote economic growth, wealth and job creation and to improve quality of life in the UK and beyond.

For more information about BBSRC, our science and our impact, see: <https://bbsrc.ukri.org>.

2. Aims

BBSRC are looking to appoint an individual or team with expertise of engaging with the farmed animals/ livestock sector, with a specific interest in animal health, to deliver co-ordination activities for the Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative, and to carry out monitoring and evaluation of the initiative.

In the UK, endemic livestock diseases are the main barrier to improving productivity, and have direct negative impacts on animal welfare and greenhouse gas emissions in terms of individual animals and the livestock production system more broadly. However, the terrestrial livestock industry has not been able to make significant reductions in the incidences or the impacts of livestock endemic diseases. A significant amount of the costs and wider issues associated with endemic diseases in livestock are primarily linked to the farm level. Relative to national level populations, many of these diseases impact a small number of livestock, yet for an individual farm the implications can be considerable.

The Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative (ELD) aims to meaningfully reduce the overall level and impact of endemic disease on the UK livestock sector, to improve productivity and the health and welfare of animals. The initiative brings academia and businesses together to co-create novel prevention and intervention solutions. ELD has been established as a multi-stage initiative to develop a flagship, strategic collaborative research and development programme consisting of:

- Phase 1: two distinct investments
 - i. Catalysing Partnerships (short projects of up to £50K which lasted between 5-6 months, which concluded at the end of March 2022)
 - ii. Priming Partnerships (12 month projects of £125k to £250k starting June – Sept 2022, ending May-August 2023) which combined have led to a total of 22 research projects being funded.

- Phase 2: focusses on longer, larger research and innovation partnerships that purposefully engage farmers in solution development through collaborative R&D. These projects will be between £500k - £1m in scale and will require a 10% cash and/or in-kind contribution from collaborating businesses. Circa 7-10 projects are expected to start April – June 2023, and last up to 36 months.

The initiative is funded by BBSRC, Defra, Daera and Scottish Government. Collaboration is at the core of this initiative, with an emphasis on co-creating solutions with end users such as farmers and vets.

3. Objectives

The coordinators will add value to the Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative by:

- Undertaking networking and dissemination activities: to support engagement between academic project teams, project partners, as well as the livestock sector more broadly. The coordinator(s) will ensure that all project partners and collaborators can fully engage in the initiative, by fostering an open innovation environment, and providing an inclusive space for collaboration around shared challenges. These may take the form of, but are not limited to: networking events for award holders and collaborators, and end of project events.
- Project monitoring: working with project teams and industry partners to understand and record project progress and outputs against the programme objectives, and communicate these to BBSRC. The coordinator(s) will also lead regular meetings between project teams, and attend regular catchups between the coordinator(s) and BBSRC. These meetings may be virtual or in-person as appropriate.
- Communications: Ensuring project teams, project partners, BBSRC and co-funders are kept informed about the progress of the initiative, signposting opportunities for sector of wider public engagement with the Initiative to maximise the translation and impact of the investment.
- Reporting and maximising impact: capturing and reporting on outcomes of Phase 1 and Phase 2 of the initiative to enable BBSRC to demonstrate the impact of its investment and support the wider dissemination of project outcomes.

The coordinator(s) will be expected to demonstrate the following skills and experience:

1. Detailed knowledge of the livestock agriculture sector, ideally with a specialist understanding of livestock health
2. Detailed understanding of the relevant scientific research base in the UK, and how UKRI and BBSRC investments support this.

3. Awareness and understanding of the wider research and policy landscape as it relates to the livestock sector.
4. Practical experience of project co-ordinating or project managing industry-academia research collaborations.
5. Practical experience of facilitating collaboration between academia and industry.
6. Practical experience of stakeholder engagement, ideally within the livestock sector.
7. Practical experience of co-ordinating and facilitating stakeholder engagement events and/or workshops.
8. Excellent written and verbal communication skills, with experience of communicating effectively with diverse audiences.
9. Demonstrable experience of delivering thorough project evaluation reports, within an allocated timeframe.
10. Personal Skills
 - a. exceptional communication, networking and interpersonal skills
 - b. effective facilitator in both commercial and academic arenas
 - c. capacity to build trust and gain the respect of the academic community and the capability to engage effectively with Industry Members, and beyond.
 - d. team player attitude to encourage a collaborative ethos across the Initiative.

4. Background to the Requirement

The Business Interaction Unit at BBSRC supports and drives strategic engagement and co-investment in pre-competitive areas with bioscience and biotechnology businesses, as well as businesses in other sectors and industries with relevant interests, to ensure academic-business collaborations deliver maximum impact across the UK and globally. BBSRC funds collaborative R&D between academia and business via a number of funding mechanisms, including Industrial Partnership Awards, Link Awards and the newly launched Prosperity Partnerships, as well as via multiple strategic funding opportunities every year. Among the strategic funding opportunities launched by the Business Interaction Unit this year are the Diet and Health Open Innovation Research Club, and the Novel Crop Pests and Diseases Call.

The Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative was launched in 2021 after extensive stakeholder engagement across the livestock sector and with policy makers. Thus far, 11 Catalysing Partnerships projects were funded, which ended in Spring 2022. A further 11 Priming Partnerships projects have started between June-September 2022, and will be running for 12 months. BBSRC expects to fund between seven to ten projects in total in the Phase 2: CR&D round of the Initiative, with the projects lasting no longer than 36 months. A total of £9.35 million is being invested in the Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative by BBSRC, Defra, Daera and Scottish Government. Effective coordination, monitoring and evaluation of the initiative is vital to ensure the aims and objectives of the investment are met, and maximum impact can be realised.

The Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative is aligned to the BBSRC strategic priorities of:

- Bioscience for an integrated understanding of health
- Bioscience for sustainable agriculture and food
- One Health
- Welfare of managed animals

The government food strategy continues to highlight the importance of controlling endemic diseases in farmed animals to ensure a thriving farming sector. Furthermore, the strategy also sets out that another part of supporting a thriving farming sector is to ensure that the animals and crops we keep and grow are healthy and well-cared for, which also benefits the health and welfare of humans.

5. Scope

BBSRC would like to invite tenders to deliver the role of Endemic Livestock Diseases Coordinator(s) for the period of 03 March 2023 – 30 September 2026 (43 months).

The coordinator(s) will lead the monitoring of ~30 active projects, as well as the evaluation of these ~ 30 projects, and carry out an overall evaluation of the initiative as a whole, supplying a final evaluation report suitable for internal use by BBSRC and the initiative's co-funders (Defra, Daera and Scottish Government).

The coordinator(s) are expected to keep in regular contact with BBSRC throughout the duration of this project with quarterly meetings and additional communications.

The co-ordinator(s) will be expected to deliver the following outputs to ensure that the Endemic Livestock Diseases Initiative fully delivers on the objectives of the initiative:
