Section 4 – Specification

Introduction

UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) - The Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) seeks to support academic researchers within our remit who are based within UK universities and Independent Research Organisations \(IROs\) to develop the knowledge and skills that will enable them to engage effectively with public policy. By doing so, we aim to provide them with the tools and skills to make a demonstrable difference to public policy with their research, and to give policy-makers access to new knowledge and ways of working. To ensure that this skills development activity is up-to-date and relevant, we invite proposals from organisations that are close to policy-makers and influencers and have expertise in the application of research to policy, and specifically arts and humanities research across a broad range of disciplines.

Background to the Requirement

The arts and humanities are routes to understanding what it means to be human, and recording and interpreting the human experience. The application of academic research in the arts and humanities to public policy-making is extensive and varied, including cultural and historical contextualisation of political and social issues, and critical and reflective insights into policies and their application.

To engage effectively with the policy-making process, researchers require a range of specialist knowledge, skills and contacts that they may not find opportunities to develop during the early stages of an academic research career.

Fostering good partnerships with policy makers requires an understanding of the pressures which policy makers are often under to find policy 'solutions', and also a willingness to understand and engage with the perspectives and expertise that policy makers bring. Policy makers themselves may be less familiar with the contribution that arts and humanities research can make, compared to the commissioning of social science or other scientific research to inform policy. Academic researchers in the arts and humanities need, therefore, to be able to clearly articulate the different contribution that their disciplines can make to informed and reflective policy making.

UK Research and Innovation - The Arts and Humanities Research Council (UKRI-AHRC) provides funding for academic research and researchers, along with guidance, support and advocacy, to ensure that the benefits of arts and humanities research are widely shared. We promote dialogue between academic researchers, policy makers and legislators, and the knowledge and skills that they need to do this effectively.

Aims

- To generate improved capacity in the arts and humanities academic research population to engage effectively with public policy at a range of levels (national, including UK Government and the devolved administrations, regional, and local);
- To build a network of proficient arts and humanities researchers, across different UK-based universities and eligible Independent Research Organisations, with policy engagement skills and interests;
- To gather evidence for the impact of arts and humanities research in public policy.

Objectives

- To develop and deliver training and skills development activities in public policy engagement to academic researchers in the arts and humanities:
 - To develop learning materials appropriate for researchers at any postdoctoral career stage, focusing on imparting knowledge and developing skills that are important for policy engagement, but which researchers have not yet had the opportunity to develop.
 - To work with AHRC to develop the training content, so that it achieves our aim of building public policy engagement capacity of the arts and humanities research community.
 - In co-operation with AHRC, to select the training participants from a pool of applicants, to ensure that those given the opportunity to participate in the training will benefit from doing so, and are well positioned to apply their research to policy in the future.
 - To communicate with participants, to ensure that they have access to any information or resources required.
 - To deliver annual training, with support where appropriate from policy-makers and influencers, illustrated with case studies specific to arts and humanities research.
- To create and sustain a community of researchers in universities and IROs who have undergone this training, and who continue to seek out pathways to engage with policy:
 - To maintain regular communication with alumni of this training, providing opportunities for them to network with one another, and to disseminate their skills more widely within the research community, focusing on policy engagement.
 - To keep this community informed of developments, such as events and funding opportunities, that may be relevant to their interests.
- To collect alumni feedback and evidence for the impact of the training, and their subsequent engagement activities in the public policy space:
 - After the training has completed, to contact the alumni to assess their experience of the course, for continuous improvement.
 - At regular intervals, to contact the alumni to invite them to share their experiences of policy engagement, and the wider benefits of the training.
 - To share this information with AHRC, to inform our provision of support for public policy engagement and to produce case study examples of policy engagement/impact.
- To maintain an alumni network of ambassadors for public policy engagement within the research community, spread across different academic institutions, disciplines and geographic regions.

Scope

UKRI - AHRC have previously funded annual, three-day training courses for early career researchers, from across our remit, and based in different UK universities. Each year, training was provided for up to 20 academic researchers, who were selected on a competitive basis by AHRC and the training provider in an annual peer review meeting.

We would like bidders to propose the most suitable methods for delivering this training, making the most of the resources and expertise held by the bidding organisation, but we would like to see some element of face-to-face delivery as an important part of engagement. The training should be suitable for academic researchers based in institutions across AHRC's remit (for further information, see the AHRC website here: <https://ahrc.ukri.org/funding/research/subjectcoverage/ahrc-disciplines/>), and we are open to expanding the provision of the training to postdoctoral researchers at any stage in their career.

The Requirement

UKRI - AHRC invites proposals for the design, development and delivery of training that will enable postdoctoral academic researchers in the arts and humanities to engage effectively with policy-makers. The bidder will be required to state how many researchers they are able to train, within the stated budget, and subject to demand from the research community. The bidder should also outline how candidates for this training will be selected, working jointly with the AHRC against a set of assessment criteria, to ensure fairness and transparency.

The training will be received by academic researchers based at different UK universities and eligible Independent Research Organisations (IROs). A list of eligible IROs can be found on the UKRI website here: <https://www.ukri.org/files/funding/tcs/eligible-independent-research-organisations-pdf/>

By the end of training, recipients will be equipped with knowledge and understanding of government, policy-making and legislating, including the challenges and complexities involved in creating a successful policy, and the challenges for researchers in engaging with policy-makers, legislators and the policy-making process. They will be able to identify numerous possible routes to engagement, including through the Civil Service, Parliament and devolved administrations, local government, and a range of external influencers, and they will be able to plan how to use these routes most effectively to bring their research to bear on policy questions. The training will also help them to develop their communication and influencing skills, including how to build an influential social media presence in order to convey effectively the subject matter of their research and the key messages that it has for policy.

Another aim of these skills development activities is to build a network of highly-skilled arts and humanities researchers within universities and IROs with the capacity to engage with public policy, in order that they can share knowledge among themselves, act as ambassadors for research in policy contexts, and provide the AHRC with evidence for the impact of funding for research in the arts and humanities. The organisation that delivers this training will be ideally placed to continue to engage with the course alumni, providing a forum for communication that will support this network.

Organisations interested in delivering this training will be required to provide evidence for the following:

1. Knowledge of the nature of arts and humanities research, and the contribution that it can make to policy making. Ideally, this would involve an understanding of working with arts and humanities academic researchers in this context.

2. Knowledge of work in arts and humanities research which has current policy impact, in order to identify appropriate contributors and case studies.
3. Awareness of the challenges faced by policy makers in engaging with academic researchers, especially any issues that are distinctive to arts and humanities research.
4. Relationships with senior policy makers and influencers, in order to identify and draw on contributors to the training proposed.
5. Details of how the pre work activities and training courses will be conducted, ie: online resources or face to face and the frequency of the courses, to achieve the stated objectives.
6. Capabilities to review, research and update training content annually, to keep it up to date with changes in the policy landscape, and developments in Higher Education research policy, which may affect knowledge exchange and research impact.
7. Ability and resources to develop and deliver the materials and training over a four year period, and to coordinate a network of alumni, with only minimal guidance and input from AHRC.

Section 5 – Evaluation model

The evaluation model below shall be used for this ITQ, which will be determined to two decimal places.

Where a question is 'for information only' it will not be scored.

The evaluation team may comprise staff from UK SBS and the Contracting Authority and any specific external stakeholders the Contracting Authority deems required. After evaluation the scores will be finalised by performing a calculation to identify (at question level) the mean average of all evaluators (Example – a question is scored by three evaluators and judged as scoring 5, 5 and 6. These scores will be added together and divided by the number of evaluators to produce the final score of 5.33 ($5+5+6 = 16 \div 3 = 5.33$))

Scoring criteria

Evaluation Justification Statement

In consideration of this particular requirement the Contracting Authority has decided to evaluate Potential Providers by adopting the weightings/scoring mechanism detailed within this ITQ. The Contracting Authority considers these weightings to be in line with existing best practice for a requirement of this type.

Questionnaire	Q No.	Question subject	Maximum Marks to total 100%
Price	AW5.2	Price	10%
Quality	PROJ1.1	Approach to Public Policy Engagement training delivery	40%
Quality	PROJ1.2	Alumni Engagement, Evidence and Impact	20%
Quality	PROJ1.3	Contract Management and Continuous Improvement	10%
Quality	PROJ1.4	Project Team and Capability to Deliver	20%

Evaluation of criteria

Non-Price elements

Each question will be judged on a score from 0 to 100, which shall be subjected to a multiplier to reflect the percentage of the evaluation criteria allocated to that question.

Where an evaluation criterion is worth 20% then the 0-100 score achieved will be multiplied by 20%.

Example if a Bidder scores 60 from the available 100 points this will equate to 12% by using the following calculation:

$$\text{Score} = \{\text{weighting percentage}\} \times \{\text{bidder's score}\} = 20\% \times 60 = 12$$

The same logic will be applied to groups of questions which equate to a single evaluation criterion.

The 0-100 score shall be based on (unless otherwise stated within the question):

0	The Question is not answered, or the response is completely unacceptable.
10	Extremely poor response – they have completely missed the point of the question.
20	Very poor response and not wholly acceptable. Requires major revision to the response to make it acceptable. Only partially answers the requirement, with major deficiencies and little relevant detail proposed.
40	Poor response only partially satisfying the selection question requirements with deficiencies apparent. Some useful evidence provided but response falls well short of expectations. Low probability of being a capable supplier.
60	Response is acceptable but remains basic and could have been expanded upon. Response is sufficient but does not inspire.
80	Good response which describes their capabilities in detail which provides high levels of assurance consistent with a quality provider. The response includes a full description of techniques and measurements currently employed.
100	Response is exceptional and clearly demonstrates they are capable of meeting the requirement. No significant weaknesses noted. The response is compelling in its description of techniques and measurements currently employed, providing full assurance consistent with a quality provider.

All questions will be scored based on the above mechanism. Please be aware that the final score returned may be different as there may be multiple evaluators and their individual scores will be averaged (mean) to determine your final score.

Example

Evaluator 1 scored your bid as 60

Evaluator 2 scored your bid as 60

Evaluator 3 scored your bid as 40

Evaluator 4 scored your bid as 40

Your final score will $(60+60+40+40) \div 4 = 50$

Price elements will be judged on the following criteria.

The lowest price for a response which meets the pass criteria shall score 100.

All other bids shall be scored on a pro rata basis in relation to the lowest price. The score is then subject to a multiplier to reflect the percentage value of the price criterion.

For example - Bid 1 £100,000 scores 100.

Bid 2 £120,000 differential of £20,000 or 20% remove 20% from price scores 80

Bid 3 £150,000 differential £50,000 remove 50% from price scores 50.

Bid 4 £175,000 differential £75,000 remove 75% from price scores 25.

Bid 5 £200,000 differential £100,000 remove 100% from price scores 0.

Bid 6 £300,000 differential £200,000 remove 100% from price scores 0.

Where the scoring criterion is worth 50% then the 0-100 score achieved will be multiplied by 50.

In the example if a supplier scores 80 from the available 100 points this will equate to 40% by using the following calculation: $\text{Score/Total Points multiplied by 50}$ ($80/100 \times 50 = 40$)

The lowest score possible is 0 even if the price submitted is more than 100% greater than the lowest price.

Section 6 – Evaluation questionnaire

Bidders should note that the evaluation questionnaire is located within the e-sourcing questionnaire.

Guidance on completion of the questionnaire is available at <http://www.ukpbs.co.uk/services/procure/Pages/supplier.aspx>

PLEASE NOTE THE QUESTIONS ARE NOT NUMBERED SEQUENTIALLY

DO:

- 7.1 Do comply with Procurement document instructions. Failure to do so may lead to disqualification.
- 7.2 Do provide the Bid on time, and in the required format. Remember that the date/time given for a response is the last date that it can be accepted; we are legally bound to disqualify late submissions. Responses received after the date indicated in the ITQ shall not be considered by the Contracting Authority, unless the Bidder can justify that the reason for the delay, is solely attributable to the Contracting Authority

- 7.9 Do provide clear, concise and ideally generic contact details; telephone numbers, e-mails and fax details.
- 7.10 Do complete all questions in the questionnaire or we may reject your Bid.
- 7.11 Do ensure that the Response and any documents accompanying it are in the English Language, the Contracting Authority reserve the right to disqualify any full or part responses that are not in English.

- 7.42 All Central Government Departments and their Executive Agencies and Non-Departmental Public Bodies are subject to control and reporting within Government. In particular, they report to the Cabinet Office and HM Treasury for all expenditure. Further, the Cabinet Office has a cross-Government role delivering overall Government policy on public procurement - including ensuring value for money and related aspects of good procurement practice.

For these purposes, the Contracting Authority may disclose within Government any of the Bidders documentation/information (including any that the Bidder considers to be confidential and/or commercially sensitive such as specific bid information) submitted by the Bidder to the Contracting Authority during this Procurement. - 7.43 The Government introduced its new Government Security Classifications (GSC) classification scheme on the 2nd April 2014 to replace the current Government Protective Marking System (GPMS). A key aspect of this is the reduction in the number of security classifications used. All Bidders are encouraged to make themselves aware of the changes and identify any potential impacts in their Bid, as the protective marking and applicable protection of any material passed to, or generated by, you during the procurement process or pursuant to any Contract awarded to you as a result of this tender process will be subject to the new GSC. The link below to the Gov.uk website provides information on the new GSC:

The Contracting Authority reserves the right to amend any security related term or condition of the draft contract accompanying this ITQ to reflect any changes introduced by the GSC. In particular where this ITQ is accompanied by any instructions on safeguarding classified information (e.g. a Security Aspects Letter) as a result of any changes stemming from the new GSC, whether in respect of the applicable protective marking scheme, specific protective markings given, the aspects to which any protective marking applies or otherwise. This may relate to the instructions on safeguarding classified information (e.g. a Security Aspects Letter) as they apply to the procurement as they apply to the procurement process and/or any contracts awarded to you as a result of the procurement process.
