- (a) have such Goods promptly, free of charge and in any event within 5 Working Days, either repaired by the Contractor or replaced by the Contractor with Goods which conform in all respects with the approved sample or with the Specification and due delivery shall not be deemed to have taken place until such repair or replacement has occurred; or
 - (b) treat the Contract as discharged by the Contractor's breach and obtain a refund (if payment for the Goods has already been made) from the Contractor in respect of the Goods concerned together with payment of any additional expenditure reasonably incurred by the Authority in obtaining other goods in replacement.
- F1.3 The Authority will be deemed to have accepted the Goods if it expressly states the same in writing or fails to reject the Goods in accordance with clause F1.2.
- F1.4 The issue by the Authority of a receipt note for delivery of the Goods shall not constitute any acknowledgement of the condition, quantity or nature of those Goods, or the Authority's acceptance of them.
- F1.5 The Contractor hereby guarantees the Goods against faulty materials or workmanship for such period as may be specified in the Specification or, if no period is specified, for a period of 18 months from the date of delivery. If the Authority shall within such period or within 25 Working Days thereafter give notice to the Contractor of any defect in any of the Goods as may have arisen during such period under proper and normal use, the Contractor shall (without prejudice to any other rights and remedies which the Authority may have) promptly remedy such defects (whether by repair or replacement as the Authority shall elect) free of charge.
- F1.6 Any Goods rejected or returned by the Authority as described in clause F1.2 shall be returned to the Contractor at the Contractor's risk and expense.

F2 Monitoring of Contract Performance

- F2.4 The Authority may produce a report (a "Checkpoint Review Report") of the results of each Checkpoint Review stating any areas of exceptional performance and areas for improvement in the provision of the Services and where there is any shortfall in any aspect of performance reviewed as against the Authority's expectations and the Contractor's obligations under this Contract.
- F2.5 The Authority shall give the Contractor a copy of the Checkpoint Review Report (if applicable). The Authority shall consider any Contractor comments and may produce a revised Checkpoint Review Report.
- F2.6 The Contractor shall, within 10 Working Days of receipt of the Checkpoint Review Report (revised as appropriate) provide the Authority with a plan to address resolution of any shortcomings and implementation of improvements identified by the Checkpoint Review Report.
- F2.7 Actions required to resolve shortcomings and implement improvements (either as a consequence of the Contractor's failure to meet its obligations under this Contract identified by the Checkpoint Review Report, or those which result from the Contractor's failure to meet the Authority's expectations notified to the Contractor or of which the Contractor ought reasonably to have been aware) shall be implemented at no extra charge to the Authority.

F3 Reporting

- F3.4 Unless Approved, the Contractor shall submit by the completion date of the Services a final report (the "Final Report") consisting of 2 hard copies and one electronic copy on either computer readable disk or by e-mail in a format specified by the Authority. When submitting the Final Report to the Authority the Contractor shall indicate any information contained in the Final Report which it considers to be commercially sensitive or which might otherwise merit non-publication and the Authority shall not disclose such information without first having consulted the Contractor (without prejudice to the Authority's discretion as to whether to publish following such consultation).

F3.7 The Authority reserves the right to reject any Annual Report or Final Report submitted by the Contractor which is not, in the reasonable opinion of the Authority, satisfactory, either in form or content, having regard to the provisions of this Schedule. If an Annual Report or Final Report is rejected by the Authority, the Contractor shall remedy any deficiencies identified by the Authority and submit a revised version at no additional cost to the Authority or the Co-funders.

F3.8 The Contractor shall supply any additional reports, including financial reports, in respect of the Services, at such time or times, and in such form, as the Authority may reasonably require. Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, the Contractor shall provide to the Authority such information as the Authority may reasonably require regarding commercial exploitation of the Results, including details of any licences granted to third parties in respect of any Intellectual Property Rights in the same. F3.9 The Contractor shall, subject to reasonable notice, attend all meetings specified in the Contract or otherwise arranged by the Authority for the purpose of discussion of the Services.

F4 Remedies for inadequate performance

F4.1 If the Authority reasonably believes the Contractor has committed a Material Breach it may, without prejudice to its rights under clause H2 (Termination on Default), do any of the following:

reasonable satisfaction that the Contractor will be able to supply the Services in accordance with the Specification;

- (b) without terminating the whole of the Contract, terminate the Contract in respect of part of the Services only (whereupon a corresponding reduction in the Price shall be made) and thereafter itself supply or procure a third party to supply such part of the Services;
- (c) withhold or reduce payments to the Contractor in such amount as the Authority reasonably deems appropriate in each particular case; and/or
- (d) terminate the Contract in accordance with clause H2.

F4.2 Without prejudice to its right under clause C3 (Recovery of Sums Due), the Authority may charge the Contractor for any costs reasonably incurred and any reasonable administration costs in respect of the supply of any part of the Services by the Authority or a third party to the extent that such costs exceed the payment which would otherwise have been payable to the Contractor for such part of the Services.

F4.3 If the Authority reasonably believes the Contractor has failed to supply all or any part of the Services in accordance with the Contract, professional or industry practice which could reasonably be expected of a competent and suitably qualified person, or any legislative or regulatory requirement, the Authority may give the Contractor notice specifying the way in which its performance falls short of the requirements of the Contract or is otherwise unsatisfactory.

F4.4 If the Contractor has been notified of a failure in accordance with clause F4.3 the Authority may:

- (a) direct the Contractor to identify and remedy the failure within such time as may be specified by the Authority and to apply all such additional resources as are necessary to remedy that failure at no additional charge to the Authority within the specified timescale; and/or
- (b) withhold or reduce payments to the Contractor in such amount as the Authority deems appropriate in each particular case until such failure has been remedied to the satisfaction of the Authority.

- (a) use all reasonable endeavours to immediately minimise the impact of such failure to the Authority and to prevent such failure from recurring; and
- (b) immediately give the Authority such information as the Authority may request regarding what measures are being taken to comply with the obligations in this clause F4.5 and the progress of those measures until resolved to the satisfaction of the Authority.

F4.6 If, having been notified of any failure, the Contractor fails to remedy it in accordance with clause F4.5 within the time specified by the Authority, the Authority may treat the continuing failure as a Material Breach and may terminate the Contract immediately on notice to the Contractor.

F5 Transfer and Sub-Contracting

F5.1 Except where clauses F5.5 and F5.6 both apply, the Contractor shall not transfer, charge, assign, sub-contract or in any other way dispose of the Contract or any part of it without Approval. All such documents shall be evidenced in writing and shown to the Authority on request. Sub-contracting any part of the Contract shall not relieve the Contractor of any of its obligations or duties under the Contract.

F5.2 The Contractor is responsible for the acts and/or omissions of its Sub-Contractors as though they are its own. If it is appropriate, the Contractor shall provide each Sub-Contractor with a copy of the Contract and obtain written confirmation from them that they will provide the Services fully in accordance with the Contract.

F5.3 The Contractor shall ensure that its Sub-Contractors and suppliers retain all records relating to the Services for at least 6 years from the date of their creation and make them available to the Authority on request in accordance with the provisions of clause E10 (Audit). If any Sub-Contractor or supplier does not allow the Authority access to the records then the Authority shall have no obligation to pay any claim or invoice made by the Contractor on the basis of such documents or work carried out by the Sub-Contractor or supplier.

- F5.4 If the Authority has consented to the award of a Sub-Contract the Contractor shall ensure that:
- (a) the Sub-Contract contains a right for the Contractor to terminate the Sub-Contract if the relevant Sub-Contractor does not comply in the performance of its contract with legal obligations in environmental, social or labour law;
 - (b) the Sub-Contractor includes a provision having the same effect as set out in clause F5.4 (a) in any Sub-Contract which it awards; and
 - (c) copies of each Sub-Contract shall, at the request of the Authority, be sent by the Contractor to the Authority immediately.
- F5.5 If the Authority believes there are:
- (a) compulsory grounds for excluding a Sub-Contractor pursuant to regulation 57 of the Regulations, the Contractor shall replace or not appoint the Sub-Contractor; or
 - (b) non-compulsory grounds for excluding a Sub-Contractor pursuant to regulation 57 of the Regulations, the Authority may require the Contractor to replace or not appoint the Sub-Contractor and the Contractor shall comply with such requirement.
- F5.6 Notwithstanding clause F5.1, the Contractor may assign to a third party (the “Assignee”) the right to receive payment of the Price or any part thereof due to the Contractor (including any interest which the Authority incurs under clause C2 (Payment and VAT)). Any assignment under this clause F5.6 shall be subject to:
- (a) reduction of any sums in respect of which the Authority exercises its right of recovery under clause C3 (Recovery of Sums Due);

 - (c) the Authority receiving notification under both clauses F5.7 and F5.8.
- F5.7 If the Contractor assigns the right to receive the Price under clause F5.6, the Contractor or the Assignee shall notify the Authority in writing of the assignment and the date upon which the assignment becomes effective.
- F5.8 The Contractor shall ensure that the Assignee notifies the Authority of the Assignee's contact information and bank account details to which the Authority shall make payment.
- F5.9 The provisions of clause C2 shall continue to apply in all other respects after the assignment and shall not be amended without Approval.
- F5.10 Subject to clause F5.11, the Authority may assign, novate or otherwise dispose of its rights and obligations under the Contract or any part thereof to:
- (a) any Contracting Authority;
 - (b) any other body established or authorised by the Crown or under statute in order substantially to perform any of the functions that had previously been performed by the Authority; or
 - (c) any private sector body which substantially performs the functions of the Authority
- provided that any such assignment, novation or other disposal shall not increase the burden of the Contractor's obligations under the Contract.

- F5.11 Any change in the legal status of the Authority such that it ceases to be a Contracting Authority shall not, subject to clause F5.12, affect the validity of the Contract and the Contract shall bind and inure to the benefit of any successor body to the Authority.
- F5.12 If the rights and obligations under the Contract are assigned, novated or otherwise disposed of pursuant to clause F5.10 to a body which is not a Contracting Authority or if there is a change in the legal status of the Authority such that it ceases to be a Contracting Authority (in the remainder of this clause F5 both such bodies being referred to as the “Transferee”):
- (a) the rights of termination of the Authority in clauses H1 and H2 shall be available to the Contractor in respect of the Transferee; and
 - (b) the Transferee shall only be able to assign, novate or otherwise dispose of its rights and obligations under the Contract or any part thereof with the prior consent in writing of the Contractor.
- F5.13 The Authority may disclose to any Transferee any Confidential Information of the Contractor which relates to the performance of the Contractor’s obligations under the Contract. In such circumstances the Authority shall authorise the Transferee to use such Confidential Information only for purposes relating to the performance of the Contractor’s obligations under the Contract and for no other purpose and shall take all reasonable steps to ensure that the Transferee gives a confidentiality undertaking in relation to such Confidential Information.
- F5.14 Each Party shall at its own cost and expense carry out, or use all reasonable endeavours to ensure the carrying out of, whatever further actions (including the execution of further documents) the other Party reasonably requires from time to time for the purpose of giving that other Party the full benefit of the provisions of the Contract.
- F6 Waiver
- F6.1 The failure of either Party to insist upon strict performance of any provision of the Contract, or the failure of either Party to exercise, or any delay in exercising, any right or remedy shall not constitute a waiver of that right or remedy and shall not cause a diminution of the obligations established by the Contract.
- F6.2 No waiver shall be effective unless it is expressly stated to be a waiver and communicated to the other Party in writing in accordance with clause A4.2 (Notices).
- F6.3 A waiver of any right or remedy arising from a breach of the Contract shall not constitute a waiver of any right or remedy arising from any other or subsequent breach of the Contract.
- F7 Variation
- F7.1 If, after the Commencement Date, the Authority’s requirements change, the Authority may request a Variation subject to the terms of this clause 7.
- F7.2 The Authority may request a Variation by notifying the Contractor in writing of the Variation and giving the Contractor sufficient information to assess the extent of the Variation and consider whether any change to the Price is required in order to implement the Variation within a reasonable time limit specified by the Authority. If the Contractor accepts the Variation it shall confirm it in writing.
- F7.3 If the Contractor is unable to accept the Variation or where the Parties are unable to agree a change to the Price, the Authority may:
- (a) allow the Contractor to fulfil its obligations under the Contract without the Variation to the Specification; or
 - (b) terminate the Contract immediately except where the Contractor has already delivered all or part of the Services or where the Contractor can show evidence of substantial work being carried out to fulfil the requirements of the Specification; and in such case the Parties shall attempt to agree upon a resolution to the matter. If a resolution cannot be reached, the matter shall be dealt with under the Dispute Resolution procedure detailed in clause I2 (Dispute Resolution).

- F7.4 No Variation will take effect unless and until recorded in a validly executed CCN. Execution of a CCN shall be made via electronic signature as described in clause 1.2 of Section 1 of the Contract.
- F7.5 A CCN takes effect on the date both Parties communicate acceptance of the CCN via Bravo and, on the date it communicates its acceptance of the CCN in this way, the Contractor is deemed to warrant and represent that the CCN has been executed by a duly authorised representative of the Contractor in addition to the warranties and representations set out in clause G2.
- F7.6 The provisions of clauses F7.4 and F7.5 may be varied in an emergency if it is not practicable to obtain the Authorised Representative's approval within the time necessary to make the Variation in order to address the emergency. In an emergency, Variations may be approved by a different representative of the Authority. However, the Authorised Representative shall have the right to review such a Variation and require a CCN to be entered into on a retrospective basis which may itself vary the emergency Variation.

F8 Severability

- F8.1 If any provision of the Contract which is not of a fundamental nature is held invalid, illegal or unenforceable for any reason by any court of competent jurisdiction, such provision shall be severed and the remainder of the provisions of the Contract shall continue in full force and effect as if the Contract had been executed with the invalid, illegal or unenforceable provision eliminated.

F9 Remedies Cumulative

- F9.1 Except as expressly provided in the Contract all remedies available to either Party for breach of the Contract are cumulative and may be exercised concurrently or separately, and the exercise of any one remedy shall not be deemed an election of such remedy to the exclusion of other remedies.

F10 Entire Agreement

- F10.1 The Contract constitutes the entire agreement between the Parties in respect of the matters dealt with therein. The Contract supersedes all prior negotiations between the Parties and all representations and undertakings made by one Party to the other, whether written or oral, except that this clause shall not exclude liability in respect of any fraudulent misrepresentation.

jurisdiction shall not preclude the taking of proceedings in any other jurisdiction whether concurrently or not.

I2 Dispute Resolution

- I2.1 The Parties shall attempt in good faith to negotiate a settlement to any dispute between them arising out of or in connection with the Contract within 20 Working Days of either Party notifying the other of the dispute and such efforts shall involve the escalation of the dispute to the finance director of the Contractor and the commercial director of the Authority.

Such an opinion shall be provided on a without prejudice basis and shall not be used in evidence in any proceedings relating to the Contract without the prior written consent of both Parties; and
 - (f) if the Parties fail to reach agreement within 60 Working Days of the Mediator being appointed, or such longer period as may be agreed by the Parties, then any dispute or difference between them may be referred to the Courts unless the dispute is referred to arbitration pursuant to the procedures set out in clause I2.6.
- I2.6 Subject to clause I2.2, the Parties shall not institute court proceedings until the procedures set out in clauses I2.1 and I2.3 have been completed save that:

SCHEDULE 1 - SPECIFICATION

Lot 2 - Antiparasitic Resistance: Sheep Scab

Sheep scab is a debilitating and potentially fatal disease of sheep resulting from infestations of the highly contagious mite Psoroptes ovis. The mite causes an intensely pruritic and exudative dermatitis that can be difficult to treat and control. The disease has serious effects on the welfare of sheep, and a significant economic impact through its effect on the condition of ewes, the growth rate of lambs, disposals, movement restrictions and reduced quality of sheepskins. The prevalence of sheep scab has increased significantly over the last 20 years.

Control of sheep scab is currently dependent upon a small number of acaricidal compounds: the macrocyclic lactones (also used extensively to control other endo- and ecto-parasites) and organophosphate dips. However, there has recently been an increase in anecdotal reports of persistent treatment failure after use of macrocyclic lactones, particularly from Wales and the Welsh borders. Furthermore, the first quantitative evidence of macrocyclic lactone resistance in Psoroptes mites in the UK has just been published. This could lead to a return to increased reliance on organophosphate dips for sheep scab control.

Accordingly, research is required to respond to these recent changes in sensitivity of sheep scab mites to macrocyclic lactones, to help inform future best practice guidance for control of sheep scab. Such work could include consideration of optimisation of existing control measures, integration of new diagnostic tools (e.g. sheep scab ELISA) to promote targeted treatment and help identify treatment failures, and development of novel therapies/control strategies. The VMD are interested in commissioning work in the above areas, and research proposals are invited accordingly.

ANNEX A – MOREDUN RESEARCH INSTITUTE TENDER RESPONSE

Methodology

Control of psoroptic mange in sheep (sheep scab) has been an intractable problem in the UK over the last 40 years. Following eradication and subsequent re-introduction in 1972/73 the disease re-established widely, but was managed through compulsory national acaricidal treatment. By 1988 there were fewer than 40 reported outbreaks per year (French et al., 1999, Vet Parasitol, 83, 187-200). Deregulation in 1992 was followed by an almost exponential increase in disease incidence, with the number of outbreaks increasing to an estimated 8,000-10,000 per year (Bisdorff et al., 2006, Vet Record, 158, 749–752). Scab costs the UK sheep industry between £8-14 million/year, with most of these costs attributed to the burden of treatment (Nieuwhof & Bishop., 2005, Animal Science, 81, 23-29). Estimates for the cost of an outbreak vary from £12.30 (ADAS) to £18.84 (Stubbings, 2007, Proc Sheep Vet Soc, 31) per ewe, effectively eliminating the profit margin, though this estimate is likely to be lower than the true national cost of sheep scab.

Appropriate management of scab is essential on welfare and economic grounds, however, identifying the most appropriate pathways for future efforts is difficult. Many aspects of the epidemiology (long pre-patent period, existence in cryptic sites, off-host survival duration and variation in pathogenicity) make diagnosis of pre-patent infections and prevention of transmission (e.g. through markets) difficult. Despite recent industry-led education and outreach campaigns, little effective progress has been made towards identifying and implementing an effective or co-ordinated approach to scab control. However, 3 recent developments make thorough re-examination of scab management timely: i) development of new tools for diagnosis; ii) enhanced understanding of the epidemiology, spatial distribution and risk factors associated with infection; iii) identification of resistance to macrocyclic lactone (ML) acaricides in Psoroptes populations (Doherty et al., 2018, Vet Record, DOI:10.1136/vr.104657).

New tools for diagnosis: Current diagnosis is through observation of clinical signs and, ultimately, through the detection of mites in skin scrapings. Observational diagnosis is difficult, particularly for sub-clinical infection, and this can be a major factor in disease spread. The recent development and commercialisation of a diagnostic ELISA by the Moredun Research Institute (MRI) and Biobest (for which MRI receives income from sales of reagents to Biobest), allows identification of infested animals during the early stage of disease, often prior to the appearance of clinical signs (Nunn et al., Mol Cell Probes, 25, 212-218). The test relies on detection of antibody in serum against the mite antigen, Pso o 2, which is detectable from 2 weeks post-infestation with a sensitivity (Se) of 98.2% and a specificity (Sp) of 96.5% at the selected cut-off. The test facilitates earlier intervention, reduces the risk of clinical disease, helps limit disease spread and allows targeting treatments by identifying infested individuals as part of a biosecurity plan, thus avoiding unnecessary treatments. The test represents a major step forward in scab diagnosis and is a critical element of future disease control strategies which needs to be more thoroughly integrated into scab management strategies.

Scab hotspots and infection risk: Scab is highly localised on some farms, which are likely to report persistent outbreaks over several years. Regional hotspots also persist in some areas (Rose & Wall, 2012, Prev Vet Med, 104, 101–106). This indicates that there are likely to be specific management or environmental risk factors which distinguish these farms or regions. Poor fencing, lack of quarantine, common grazing and neighbours with scab are all important known risk factors; upland and mountain sheep on common grazing in particular remain the primary focus of infection which then disseminates into the national flock as sheep are sold and move around the country. Markets also pose a key risk for transmission due to the large number of animal contacts and wide-distribution networks. The identification of these areas and risk factors makes targeted regional management a realistic and cost-effective approach.

Resistance: Recent analysis of mites collected from flocks with persistent treatment failure to MLs demonstrated acquired resistance to moxidectin for the first time in the UK and subsequent work showed cross-resistance across the MLs (Sturgess-Osborne & Wall, unpublished). ML compounds are heavily relied on for the control/treatment of gastrointestinal nematodes, thus increasing the rate of application in an attempt to manage scab will inadvertently accelerate selection for resistance across parasite taxa. At present demonstrated resistance is largely confined to Wales/Welsh borders, although anecdotal evidence suggests it may be more widespread, particularly in areas where scab is endemic. The development of resistance to MLs is likely to create major new problems in scab management, particularly given the already high prevalence of scab infection in some regions. Integrating novel approaches into scab management strategies to help minimise the spread of resistance will become increasingly important in the future and requires urgent analysis.

Synthesis and new directions: We will use a co-ordinated, multidisciplinary approach to identify the most cost-effective pathway to optimise scab management in the UK, through integration of the blood test, a focus on regional hotspots and the existence of acaricide resistance and the need to minimise the rate of its spread. The work is timely, incorporating major advances in technology, epidemiology and an understanding of emerging problems. The project will also involve close interaction with farmers and industry to identify impediments to uptake and the optimum integration of these novel controls into a new strategy for scab management. This will be achieved through a multi-partner, highly collaborative project, which brings together the UK's leading experts on scab from across industry and academia; involving MRI and BioSS [redacted], University of Bristol [redacted], University of Nottingham [redacted] University of Glasgow [redacted] APHA [redacted] SCOPS [redacted] and with support from key industry stakeholders [redacted]. The project consists of five Work Packages:

WP1: Collation and analysis of existing UK-wide surveillance data for sheep scab. Led by [redacted] University of Glasgow (UoG) & [redacted] (APHA)

WP1 will collate and analyse surveillance data to map risk factors, trends and assess the impact of statutory notification in Scotland. It will use >1,000 Biobest samples, 2,000 APHA and SRUC VIDA diagnoses, Scottish Government/APHA notification data including anonymised locations and also data from the 2-year MRI/NFUS Isle of Mull regional eradication study. The national surveillance data available from APHA and SRUC from England, Scotland and Wales, will be analysed to identify national patterns of disease prevalence, seasonality and trends within years, as well as further refinement to identify regional hot spots of disease and areas that are potentially free. Analysis will provide information on the use, uptake and impact of the scab ELISA and identify the current and future impact of more extensive use of the ELISA test in relation to existing farming practices and disease management (by combining test results and available farm information from submission forms). It will consider the ELISA test characteristics in the field and its operation since its translation from experimental setting into commercialisation; it will provide practical guidance on its use within natural outbreaks or as a tool in preventing introduction of sheep scab in naïve flocks.

The WP will provide feedback to private vets, farmers, government agencies and industry stakeholders on the current situation of sheep scab within the UK. Beyond sheep scab, there is a growing requirement to use existing surveillance data at their full potential. This WP will therefore offer a model for the investigation of endemic diseases within the national flocks and herds.

WP1 will involve a 1-year Masters project [redacted]. The WP will source and gather all data available and undertake data cleaning. Data will be accessible through the existing collaborations between UoG and SAC Disease Investigation Centre Ayr, APHA ([redacted]), Biobest ([redacted]) and MRI ([redacted]). The WP will then analyse the collated surveillance data to determine sheep scab prevalence across the UK and within regions, temporal disease patterns, associated risk factors, impact of notifiable status in Scotland and comparison with the rest of the UK, uptake of the test (distribution of practices using it, time of year, type of diagnosis), identification of risk factors associated with farming and management practices, analytical characteristics of the test in field situations and differences in relation to previously identified regional prevalence of the disease. Analysis of data will be enhanced through the close collaboration between [REDACTED] in the EPIC Centre of Expertise in Animal Disease Outbreaks at the UoG. The outputs of this WP will feed into WPs 2-4 and the report preparation and engagement in knowledge transfer activities (presentation at conferences, farmers' meetings and vet practices) will be facilitated through WP5.

WP 2: Optimising application of the sheep scab ELISA test across a range of diagnostic scenarios. [REDACTED]

WP2 will undertake statistical analysis of existing sheep scab ELISA data to determine the utility of applying variable test cut-offs for a range of disease control scenarios. This will facilitate the use of the test for more targeted treatments, demonstrating freedom from disease, confirmation of successful treatment and suspected treatment failures and enhancing the credibility of risk-based trading, potentially allowing markets to reward high health or scab free status. WP2 will work closely with WP1. When the results from testing are coupled with flock management information and scab control activities, informed decisions can be taken to improve control, or to provide evidence that in a flock without scab, it may be possible to avoid unnecessary treatment with OP dips or injectable MLs. However, before the test can be used at maximum effectiveness for targeted treatment and fully integrated into any control strategy for scab, further statistical assessments are required:

1. Samples are currently tested in duplicate, which increases costs. The first objective will be to determine if testing can be performed in singlicate without impacting on performance. Using existing data from known positive and negative samples we will compare test Se and Sp under three scenarios: i) where both samples are used to predict the animal's true status, and an animal is considered positive if both tests are positive, ii) where both samples are used to predict the animal's true status, and an animal is considered positive if either test is positive, iii) where a single sample from the two, selected at random is used to define the animal's status. This will enable us to account for any correlation between the two test results for an individual.
2. Previous studies at MRI have shown that the test can be used to demonstrate successful treatment. Although antibodies can be detected for >3 months post-treatment, their level drops significantly 10 days after treatment. By using a two-test approach to assess antibody diminishment we can determine success of treatment. The recent evidence of resistance to moxidectin has shown the importance of following up on incidents of suspected treatment failure ([REDACTED]). We will determine the number of samples from an infested flock required to screen post-treatment to evaluate treatment efficacy – including the magnitude of antibody decline. This study will make use of existing ELISA data from the Isle of Mull eradication study performed over two years in 2013/2014. Data from successfully treated animals will be used to fit an appropriate decay model, chosen as the best fit to the data from standard models. This model will then be used to determine the effect of timing on the ELISA value, and determine the test Se to an effective treatment.
3. Testing to date has focussed on serological assessment of ewes and lambs. However, the second year of testing on Mull focussed on rams as sentinels with blood samples taken prior to, and post-tupping. This offers a more cost-effective means of screening, involving fewer samples with potentially greater coverage than standard whole flock testing. However, we need to know if ewe and ram samples react in the same way. Using samples from the Mull Study we will assess assay performance between ewe and ram samples and determine if alternative cut-offs are required. The distributions of ELISA values from positive and negative ewes and rams will be compared using a two-sample Kolmogorov-Smirnov test. If they prove to be different then the effect on Se and Sp will be compared at several, relevant cut-off values.
4. The outcome of the test is currently reported either as an optical density (OD) value. However, to align with other diagnostic tests and to facilitate smoothing out of variation between different test plates or testing runs, we will investigate the potential of reporting the test as a sample-to-positive (S/P) ratio. This is more important if we advocate the use of paired serology to investigate suspected lack of efficacy (Objective 2 (above)) as samples are unlikely to be processed at the same time. For each calculated value we will investigate the Se and Sp using known positive and negative samples. ROC curves will be produced for each set of calculated values, and area under the curve (AUC) calculated. We will compare AUC to investigate whether one approach is significantly better (has a higher AUC).

5. To apply the test to confirm freedom from disease/risk status (e.g. in markets) we need to determine how many animals to test to meet the industry requirement for selling animals of 'very low risk status'. For this application a Bayesian posterior estimate of the probability of at least one animal being positive is of most use to the purchaser. This can be estimated from the reported test value (positive or negative) the number of animals tested, and the distribution of prevalence among flocks. This approach will be used to provide guidelines for the number of animals tested in a batch. We will also investigate the possibility of using the ELISA value directly in the calculation to give higher precision.

WP3: Modelling sheep scab transmission and optimising scab management strategies.

WP3 will use and extend an existing simulation model of scab transmission between farms in the UK to answer questions about cost effectiveness of different interventions for control across regional or national farm landscapes, under a range of scenarios, including the use of the ELISA, spread of acaricide resistance and detailed evaluation of the impact of focussing management efforts on regional hotspots. WP3 will use the data and analyses emerging from WP1 and WP2.

The model developed is able to simulate the transmission of sheep scab between farms and the impact of interventions at an individual farm level. The model is based on a classic stochastic SIR (susceptible-infected-recovered) compartmental model used widely in epidemiology and adapted for sheep scab (Kermack & McKendrick, 1927, Proc. R Soc Lond, 115, 700-721), with each farm being simultaneously an individual compartment in the model as well as a node in a network of all the sheep farms in Great Britain. The model has been built using the Spatial Temporal Epidemiological Modeler (STEM), developed by IBM, coded in Java and run on the Eclipse Platform. The existing version of the model uses a modifiable baseline probability of infection to make predictions about the future rate and spatial pattern of scab transmission when different control methods are used on different numbers of sheep or on different numbers of holdings. As the model incorporates real farm geographic data, as well as summary movement data, the model can identify the spatial patterns for the transmission of scab. The model will be:

1. Extended to incorporate differing spatial patterns and rates of spread of resistance to the existing acaricidal treatments currently available and then used to explore different resistance scenarios. This model will examine the consequences of differences in the rate of development and rate of spread of resistance when different control strategies are used.
2. Adapted to allow it to explore the consequences of increasing uptake of ELISA use on both the transmission of scab and the spread of resistance.
3. Modified to incorporate economic values, such as the costs associated with different management strategies and the consequences and costs associated with scab infection, to allow it to explore the comprehensive economic consequences of different management scenarios. It will also consider the impacts of government/industry subsidies for treatment or control on scab prevalence.
4. Used in scenario analysis to allow for new insights into the effect of coordinating treatments, treating hotspots of infection and the impact of sheep movements on the transmission of scab. The ability to look at scab at this broad level will help to consider different scenarios, such as local, area wide or co-ordinated regional management and to optimise the use of the chemical treatments available, reducing the rate of development and impact of resistance.

WP4: Understanding farmer attitudes and behaviours towards management of scab to identify successful interventions.

Scab historically has had a negative stigma, resulting in farmers failing to admit they have the disease on their farms and to significant levels of under-reporting. To develop acceptable control strategies it is important to better understand industry attitudes to scab, within an environment that develops trust amongst groups of farmers. The overall aim of this WP is to explore the attitudes, beliefs and choices farmers make with respect to scab control. Farmer decision making is complex and there is evidence to suggest farmers are not simply profit maximisers (Kaler and Green, 2013, Prev Vet Med, 112, 370-377). Combining recent advances in behaviour and implementation from sociology, psychology and behavioural economics, this WP will provide further understanding of farmers beliefs, attitudes, perception of risks and the trade-offs they make in their decision making for scab control. These distributions of farmers' beliefs and choices for scab management when coupled with outputs of the mathematical model of transmission in WP3 will provide insight into real life dynamics (Verelst et al., 2016, J Roy Soc Interface, DOI: 10.1098/rsif.2016.0820) to help to design effective control strategies for scab (WP5). The WP will involve a 3-year PhD studentship [REDACTED] with three objectives:

1. Determine farmers psychosocial beliefs/attitudes to scab management and their distribution (Y 1)
2. Evaluate the relative importance of farmer beliefs and preferences for scab control (Y 1-2).
3. Identify clusters of farmers with similar beliefs and factors and attributes (Socio demographic, values etc) associated with cluster membership (Y 2- 3).

The WP will first gather information to inform important psychosocial attributes and constructs that could be important in farmer decision making for scab control. It will consider farmers beliefs on "aspects of transmission" (O'Kane et al., 2017, Prev Vet Med, 139, 123–133) constructs and concepts such as risk 'good farmer' habits (Sutherland, 2012, J Environ Manag, 104: 142-151) role of habit (Gardner et al., 2012, Br J Gen Pract, 62(605) 664–666) and interpersonal relations with the vet (Shortall et al., 2016, Prev Vet Med, 132, 20-31). To explore if there are other important constructs and understand decision making processes of farmers for scab management, it will conduct 5-6 focus groups (N=8 per group) among lowland and upland farmers. The number of focus groups to be conducted will be decided by data saturation. Data will be analyzed using thematic analysis underpinned by COM-B framework (which includes both personal, interpersonal and social contextual factors) for understanding behaviour (Michie et al., 2011, Implement Sci, 6:42). Following this, the WP will conduct a larger-scale discrete choice survey (N=800, stratified sampling to include lowland and upland farmers) to estimate prevalence of beliefs and behaviours for scab control and their relative importance using choice modelling. Latent class analysis (LCA) will be conducted to identify clusters of farmers with similar beliefs/preferences and the WP will then determine if any factors/beliefs/sociodemographic variables predict membership of a cluster using multinomial logistic regression (Flynn et al., 2010, Social Science and Med, 70, 1957-1965).

WP5: Engagement with the wider UK sheep industry with a view to future development of a national control plan for sheep scab. [REDACTED]

The aim of WP5 is to manage the project and apply and coordinate the outputs of the other WPs to deliver coherent, pragmatic advice for the sheep industry. This will involve direct engagement with industry to co-develop and disseminate via existing structures and groups, such as SCOPS. This WP will evaluate the outputs of the other WPs along with other tools and information available to consider how they can be integrated to develop a practical, targeted and coordinated way forward for the industry. Due to the significantly higher risk of infestation on farms using common/shared grazing, a 'hotspot' approach to regional control is likely to be an essential component of any new approach to scab management (SCOPS Workshop Jan 2018 recommendation). This 'hotspot' approach presents wider benefits across the industry because of the way sheep are traded and moved through the national stratified system of production. It also enables targeting of the limited resources available and fosters community ownership and coordination of both the problem and the solution. The likely success of novel management strategies will be evaluated using the knowledge gained in WP4, relating to farmer acceptability and preference including the demographic and social data that are needed to change behaviour in different farmer-types. This will be done via presenting the key findings of this project to a nominal group of up to 14 consensus panel participants. The participants will be selected from the key industry stakeholders, including for example, prescribers, auctioneers, contractors as well as farmers. WP5 will actively seek to engage stakeholders through existing links, in particular via SCOPS.

The aims of the WP will be driven by a core-steering group, which will ensure the outputs address the needs of the industry and complement initiatives in progress. Elements to be included are:

1. the design of integrated control strategies for specific areas
2. creating partnerships between farmers, vets, SQPs and industry (e.g. via Flock Health Clubs)
3. improved communication by sharing information
4. best practice approaches to allow the cascade of information to farm level, acknowledging the key role of prescribers, with consistent advice and testing support
5. promotion of small regional trials to provide preliminary evidence of the potential success of community approaches (incorporating use of the ELISA in diagnosis).

It will be beyond the remit and budget of this WP for the steering group to undertake a leading role in practical implementation, though it will be well placed to fully co-ordinate with larger proposals currently in progress designed to achieve effective practical local scab control.

The steering group will meet regularly and will arrange three full meetings over the three years of the project to bring together all project partners, producers and industry. These meetings will fully coordinate with SCOPS activity and involve key stakeholders in the presentation of results.

- iv) Liaising with the VMD project officer to ensure satisfaction with project progress and that all objectives are met in a timely fashion.

project implementation and progression. Members have been selected based on their expertise in the respective activities and their roles are to:

- i) Design the work plan for each of the research activities (WPs)
- ii) Coordinate the technical activities of the project
- iii) Coordinate the implementation of the work plan for the research activities among all WP leaders
- iv) Evaluate progress of the research activities
- v) Obtain reports on the research activities from the WP leaders

Consortium Agreement

A Consortium Agreement will be completed before the start date of the project, which will designate the Project Coordinator, Steering Group, WP leaders, design and allocation of activities and budget amongst project partners (sub-contractors) and the management and assignment of IPR. The aim of the Steering Group will be to maintain the Agreement during the life of the project. A pre-agreement has been achieved during preparation of the proposal, including aspects such as allocation of budget, management of sub-contracts and membership of the Steering Group. The partners, supported by the relevant technology transfer offices in the case of academic partners, will implement a plan for defining, following up and controlling the consortium agreement, bank guarantees, sub-contracts, ethical issues and industrial property rights/ownership.

Project Meetings

The Steering Group will meet, or convene a virtual meeting, every 6 months to discuss progress on individual WPs, and to prepare progress reports for internal scrutiny. External reports will be prepared for the VMD at months 12, 24 and a final report at month 36. A meeting will be arranged with the VMD project officer and the Steering Group before the start of the project to discuss and formalise the project reporting structure. All project partners will meet in person at regular intervals throughout the project: a kick-off meeting at month 1 (MRI) and full project meetings at months 12 (MRI), 24 (University of Bristol) and 36 (Final Project Meeting (University of Nottingham)). Interim meetings for the Steering Group will be held primarily by teleconference/SKYPE with the option for the VMD to attend at MRI should they wish. Additional meetings will be convened by request of the Project Coordinator or by other partners. During the first meeting, planning for project implementation will be established. During subsequent meetings, the Project Coordinator will present reporting of management progress, whereas WP leaders will present research progress reports. Evaluation of project progression and analyses for possible corrective actions will be undertaken by the Steering Group, with input from the VMD, who will be invited to attend the Full Project Meetings. The Steering Group will also ensure a direct link to the SCOPS steering group by providing project updates at the SCOPS biannual meetings. As the VMD are also part of the SCOPS steering group, this provides a further opportunity for the funder to engage with the project on a regular basis. Project management will follow the principle of continuous improvement throughout the project. All activities will be reinforced by electronic communication and there will be permanent communication between the partners, WP leaders and coordinator (e-mail, telephone and SKYPE or secure equivalent).

Project risk management

This includes the following systematic processes to identify, analyse and respond to risk: i) Risk management planning: strategy on how to approach and plan for the risk management of project activities; ii) Risk identification: determining which risks might affect the project and documenting their characteristics; iii) Qualitative risk analysis: measuring the probability and consequences of risks and estimating their implications for project objectives; iv) Risk response planning: developing procedures and techniques to enhance opportunities and reduce threats on the project objectives; v) Risk monitoring and control: monitoring residual risk, identifying new risks, executing risk reduction plans, and evaluating their effectiveness throughout the project life. The risk of not achieving the proposed deliverables was considered when designing the project team, thus most of the foreseen research activities may be carried out by more than one partner, ensuring the correct implementation of the project in the event of a problem with one of the partners.

Risk	Description of Risk	Work Package	Mitigation Actions to avoid risk
1	Disputes between partners	WP1-5	Ultimate responsibility for dispute resolution lies with the project coordinator, aided by the Steering Group. In the event of one partner failing to carry out work as agreed, a decision may be taken to reallocate the work and budget, to another partner.
2	IPR	WP1-4	Ownership/rules for dissemination will be written into the Collaboration Agreement to promote rapid knowledge dissemination, while protecting IPR. Existing IPR will be specified in the Agreement.
3	Deviations from budget forecast	WP1-5	Quarterly monitoring of projected and incurred spend. Regular communication with the VMD Project Officer.
4	Failure to recruit suitable candidates in time for WP start	WP1/WP3	Should any WP fail to recruit a suitable person to a role in sufficient time then we will seek a no-cost extension to the work plan.
5	Departure of Principal or co-investigator.	WP1-5	Other staff members from the MRI parasitology group (with appropriate expertise and skills) could be transferred to the project to progress the work.

Dissemination/Knowledge Exchange

The project team have a significant level of experience in the communication of research within the scientific community and to the general public at large. They are all regular contributors to national and international scientific meetings and conferences, with experience in dealing with the media, the general public and key stakeholders; namely the farming and veterinary communities. The dissemination of knowledge originating from the proposed research project will be managed via WP5, led by the project Steering Group. The group has a proven track record in disseminating information with respect to scab control and exploiting KE opportunities. For example, SCOPS meet twice a year, they issue regular press releases and have an ongoing presence in the farming media. In January 2018, a stakeholder workshop brought together key personnel to discuss and work on a scab plan going forward. At the National Sheep Association national event, SCOPS [REDACTED] organised a fully interactive scab KE session for farmers and has been actively involved in developing SQP parasite training modules. Through the Summer of 2018, there were technical workshops attended by over 90 vets either currently running or with a view to setting up Flock Health Clubs and a further 40 vets attended a NADIS parasite workshop at the Sheep Vet Society conference. Each of these events were run by Flock Health Ltd [REDACTED] in conjunction with levy board and commercial partners (e.g. AHDB, Biobest, Bimeda, Zoetis, Norbrook, MSD Animal Health). There is also a specific scab session set up for the Sheep Health and Welfare Conference (SHAWG). There is already an appetite for these types of events amongst vets, SQPs and farmers and the steering group already have good networks for delivery. The aim for KE/dissemination resulting from the evidence provided by this project, is to ensure that coherent best-practice advice is available and to promote this with events planned for Year 3 and subsequent to this project. [REDACTED] is a member of the Scottish Sheep Scab Industry Working Group, whose members include; Scottish Government, National Farmers Union Scotland; The Sheep Veterinary Society; The National Sheep Association; MRI; Scottish Agricultural Colleges; Convention of Scottish local Authorities; SEPA; APHA; British Veterinary Association; Scottish Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; The National Office of Animal Health; The Institute of Appraisers and Auctioneers; Quality Meat Scotland and The Scottish Organic Producers Association. This group will receive regular updates on the progress of the project at their quarterly meetings.

It is anticipated that publications suitable for peer-review will result from each stage of the project (WP1-4). These outputs will form the foundation, upon which, clear industry messages and a UK-wide control plan can be developed. Early formulation of ongoing plans will develop at Steering Group meetings with an initial sense-check in place through presentation and discussion at SCOPS meetings, where key personnel already gather. Initial dissemination will occur via stakeholder meetings held at the end of Years 2 and 3 and a consensus methodology will be applied to further sense-check and validate ongoing plans. Once the outputs have passed through these checks and via key stakeholders and personnel, there will be KE opportunities for dissemination to the wider industry. These will take a similar form to the events that took place in 2018 with opportunities for presentations and workshops at farm veterinary events (e.g. Sheep Veterinary Society, British Cattle Veterinary Association, London Vet Show, Flock Health Club CPD) and at National Sheep Association, Animal Health Distributor Association events and the Sheep Health and Welfare Conference (SHAWG). The trickle-down method will seed further local SQP and farmer workshops and Flock Health Club type meetings run via agricultural merchants and vets and with the support of commercial partners. We will also seek to engage with markets/auctioneers and will supply appropriate training materials to drovers to raise awareness of scab.
