1. Introduction

Bioeconomy refers to economic activity that uses renewable biological resources from land and sea, such as crops, forests, fish, animals and micro-organisms to produce goods (including food and materials), services and energy. It supports low carbon and circular economies, the transition away from fossil fuel energy and numerous adjacent sectors which are currently the by-products of fossil fuel production, for example petrochemicals. By optimising the use of biological resources from land and ocean, the bioeconomy maximises co-benefits, including the production of biomass, mitigating climate change and enhancing biodiversity. Nature based solutions and sustainable management of terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems help regenerate natural ecosystems and respect maximum sustainable yields, safeguard multi-functionality of forests, avoid harmful pollution, and improve ecosystem resilience.

Transitions to a bioeconomy can increase pressure on bioresources (e.g. land, water and other natural resources) on top of existing demands and expected additional requirements for other land and ocean use for climate protection, with risks of resource degradation and threats to the intactness of forests, ocean and other ecosystems and their biodiversity, functions and services. Depending on the context and bioeconomy pathway, some of the negative impacts may even be higher per unit of bio-based products compared to fossil-based products.¹ As the bioeconomy continues to grow and demands exceed sustainable supply, there is a need for an in-depth understanding of the UK's natural environment to inform a holistic and coherent coordination plan to:

- 1) identify, assess and address trade-offs between competing use of land and ocean to best match bioresources production and consumption for sustainable sourcing and allocation of bioresources;
- 2) develop a detailed understanding of the environmental impact resulting from innovations, new processes and productions of novel bio-products at an industrial scale for AgriFood, renewable energy, biomaterials and bioprocesses (for example biodegradable chemicals and plastics), and other bioeconomy sectors to enable economic growth, whilst protecting and restoring the environment.

2. Aims & Objectives

The purpose of this procurement is to appoint a provider or a consortium of experts to provide an economic appraisal related to developing a prosperous and environmentally sustainable bioeconomy within the UK. This is intended to inform an economic case as part of developing a successful business case based on HM Treasury's five-part business case model² to secure potential government investment in developing a precompetitive, multi/inter-disciplinary research and innovation programme that will support the development of the UK's bioeconomy to protect and restore the natural environment and drive clean growth.

It is intended that the outputs of this tender will provide a structure and content (for example but not limited to economic costs and benefits of the above that can be readily converted into an economic case as part of a successful business case for securing new public and private investment in establishing a precompetitive multidisciplinary research and innovation programme to address knowledge gaps and advance this area as part of a whole-systems approach.

3. Objectives

Via this independent work, UKRI NERC is seeking to understand the market drivers and failures, existing capability within the UK and strategic opportunities where precompetitive research and innovation can help overcome barriers and accelerate transitions to a prosperous and environmentally sustainable bioeconomy across UK with a focus on environmental science as part of a whole-systems and transdisciplinary approach.

NERC is particularly interested in identifying pre-competitive research and innovation gaps where environmental science can inform solutions, either directly or as a framework for wider multi/inter/trans-disciplinary research, which would contribute towards a new whole-systems approach in this area. To that end, the work undertaken should involve a literature review, horizon scanning and broader foresight methodologies and stakeholder engagement to secure commitment to collaborate

Objective 1: Develop a compelling economic appraisal (up-to-twelve-page report with an up-to-two-page executive summary accompanied by a set of presentations slides) to inform a successful business case to secure new public (following the HM Treasury's five-part business model)^{3,4} and private investment on developing a broad, multidisciplinary research and innovation programme as part of a systems approach to develop a sustainable and circular bioeconomy, should a new funding opportunity arise in the future. Examples of previous opportunities include Industrial Strategy Challenge Fund⁵ and Strategic Priority Fund⁶.

An Economic Appraisal that can feed into an Economic Case as part of a business case should appropriate funding arise. The Economic Appraisal should provide evidence on realising environmentally sustainable bioeconomy opportunities across the UK whilst addressing the associated challenges and minimising risks, research question examples include but are not limited to:

- How environmental science might tackle environmental costs that impact UK bioeconomy business' bottom line and barriers to change towards a more environmentally sustainable model?
- What are the key factors for a future bioeconomy to be successful in the UK benefiting climate and natural environment in the UK and overseas?
- What are the potential opportunities and limitations of an environmentally sustainable bioeconomy across UK geographic locations?

It should also include details of the following:

- Is there a reasonable range of options in the long & short lists?
- Is ruling out of potential promising options clearly justified?
- Are all economic costs and benefits clearly calculated for each year covered by the proposal with NPV calculated correctly (see below)?
- Is distributional analysis needed, who benefits, who pays?

³ <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-green-book-appraisal-and-evaluation-in-central-government>

⁴ <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-green-book-templates-and-support-material>

⁵ <https://www.ukri.org/our-work/our-main-funds/industrial-strategy-challenge-fund/>

⁶ <https://www.ukri.org/our-work/our-main-funds/strategic-priorities-fund/>

- Are all costs and benefits quantified, if not is this justified?
- Are there any decisive unquantified cost/benefits and are they clearly explained?
- Are there appropriate sensitivity analyses, including worst case scenario?
- Are results of each option presented clearly including do nothing/minimum option?
- Are risks, constraints and dependencies identified and managed?
- Is optimism bias properly included and aligned with risk?
- Are wider impacts assessed e.g. sustainability, competition, regulatory impact?
- Is there a Benefits register; benefits realisation (delivery) plan?
- If PFI involved is tax properly treated and is risk transfer clearly achieved?
- Is best VfM = max NPV and if not do unquantified benefits justify the cost?
- Exchequer impact calculated separately and not included in NPV!
- Are monitoring and evaluation costs included?

Notes on NPV calculation key issues (if in doubt, consult an economist)

- Correct discount rate (3.5% real).
- Figures in real terms/constant prices at base year, sunk costs excluded.
- Opportunity costs of already-owned assets included.
- Residual values included.
- Double counting avoided.
- Transfer costs / benefits excluded.
- Uses only economic resource costs (payment good/service).
- Financing items/sources excluded.
- Second round effects included (e.g. only genuine job creation).
- Tax/subsidy treatment must be non-distorting between options.

Objective 2: Produce a logic model or a theory of change to illustrate why it is necessary for public investment in precompetitive multi/inter/trans-disciplinary research and innovation to support a transition to the UK's prosperous and environmentally sustainable bioeconomy informed by environmental science and how it will deliver tangible benefits to the UK by addressing market failures and barriers to change and reflecting on review and recommendations from a Parliament Select Committee.⁷ Produce a monitoring and evaluation framework should funding be secured to develop a research and innovation programme. Details of theory of change can be found via: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/the-magenta-book>.

- Key factors for success and failure learnt from previous initiatives (both public and private) relevant to developing a sustainable bioeconomy in the UK.
- Opportunities for transferring learnings between various business sectors and communities that depend on the bioeconomy.

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this deliverable with interim reports submitted by the end of February 2023 and the first draft of a final report (a maximum of ten pages) including an executive summary and outputs (such as a presentation set, supporting documents and data, and a summary output of stakeholder engagement) submitted by 31st March 2023 with the finalised full reports due by 10th July 2023.

Objective 4:

4.1 Analyse the current environmental sustainability approach across relevant businesses sectors and public decision makers (e.g. local authorities, government departments and regulators) in order to:

- recommend opportunities where a pre-competitive research and innovation programme across disciplines but with a focus on environmental science can address the bioeconomy business challenges as part of a whole-system solutions based on deliverables of objective 3, i.e., market failures, barriers and incentives to change, gaps and implications of new market trends, drivers and government policies.
- produce a summary report (including executive summary) detailing the outputs of objective 4.1 and including: business-led challenges and necessary interventions (both public and private) required in the area of precompetitive research and innovation activities. Recommendation on the priorities with justifications, such as relevant international literatures, initiatives and good practice related to building a sustainable and circular bioeconomy.

Justification can also include published reports, sector analysis, patents, papers, ONS information, other government information, websites, social media and grey literature which stands for manifold document types produced on all levels of government, academics, business and industry in print and electronic formats that are protected by intellectual property rights, of sufficient quality to be collected and preserved by libraries and institutional repositories, but not controlled by commercial publishers; i.e. where publishing is not the primary activity of the producing body." Examples of grey literature includes conference abstracts, presentations, proceedings; regulatory data; unpublished trial data; government publications; reports (such as white papers, working papers, internal documentation); dissertations/theses; patents and policies & procedures.⁸ relevant international literatures, initiatives and good practice related to the bioeconomy.

This can also include more direct interaction across sectors, including interviews and workshops. Please note that it is the contractor's responsibility to source the data.

4.2 Identify and map key stakeholders across bioeconomy sectors in the UK. Engage key stakeholders (identified via a set of criteria agreed with NERC) to seek their feedback on outputs 4.1. Make recommendations on how to secure key stakeholders' commitment to co-create intervention or implement recommendations as outlined above.

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this deliverable with interim reports submitted by the end of February 2023 and the first draft of a final report submitted by 31st March 2023 with a finalised full report submitted by 10th July 2023-, including a up to six-page final summary reports including an executive summary (up to two page) and outputs (such as a presentation set, supporting documents and data), and all contact detailers of all stakeholders interviewed or engaged and associated interview and meeting notes.

Objective 5:

A landscape analysis to synthesise understanding of the benefits and trade-offs associated with a shift towards a holistic bioeconomy in the UK and evidence to support the assumption that this would be both a viable option and favourable to the status quo in terms of impact on climate and the natural environment more broadly. The review should take a cross-sectoral approach, including but not restricted to, a focus on the food, energy and chemical industries.

Output: A landscape report mapping existing evidence to support the assumption that a shift to a bioeconomy in the UK would be both viable and favourable in terms of environmental outcomes when compared to an economy based on fossil fuel consumption and more traditional industrial processes.

Deliverable: The supplier must provide weekly updates on progress against this objective with interim reports submitted by end of February 2023 and the first draft of final reports submitted by 31st March 2023 with the finalised full reports including an executive summary (a maximum of two pages), a summary report (a maximum of six pages) and outputs (such as a presentation set, supporting documents and raw data) submitted by 10th July 2023

4. Scope

Within scope:

Environmental contribution as part of inter/multi/trans-disciplinary solutions through a whole-system lens to address any business-led challenges (single or cross-sector) in the space of all economic activities related to the use of biological products and processes, to drive business productivity and clean growth whilst meeting Net Zero legislative targets and preserving and restoring natural environment on land and in the ocean. Including but not limited to the following examples:

- Environmental management of land and marine ecosystems for a holistic and coherent approach across the UK to balance competing demands of land/ocean use accounting for the UK's geological and ecological characteristics and restoring degraded areas to improve long-term productivity.
- Bio-resource productivity and associated intensified land and ocean use, healthy and productive soil and marine ecosystems, resources (water, and energy) and chemicals consumption, and pollutants. For instance, with a forecasted supply shortage of sustainable bio-materials, how can bio-based feedstocks derived from land or ocean be best managed for the production of renewable energy, biodegradable chemicals and materials.
- Understanding the environmental impact of bioeconomy innovations, particularly scale up of existing technology and mass production and how to balance sector-specific and cross-sectorial demands, for example lab-grown proteins for humans and animals.

- Investigating circular bioeconomy opportunities between different industries, for example but not limited to food and textiles, energy and materials more broadly. Joining up design, manufacture and waste management to develop new value chains.

UK-focused but contextualised against international stakeholders and the entire supply chain within and outside of the UK.

Some aspects of the scope above may be flexible; contingent on whether the supplier can make a convincing case during the course of the project that a given aspect must be within scope to deliver a whole-systems approach.

It is expected that this project will be delivered through a mix of desk-based research and stakeholder engagement. UKRI is open to tenders that offer innovative suggestions. Given the wide scope of the specification, UKRI are open to consortia of multi-supplier bids.

Out of scope:

Single disciplinary solutions and approaches.

Solutions or approaches without considering environment science aspects.

Research and innovation activities that are not precompetitive.

Research and innovation that should be led and funded by industry or investment outside of NERC's and UKRI's remit.

Business sectors that require land use but are out of the scope of the bioeconomy, for example mining. See section 1 for more information on the scope of bioeconomy activities.

5. Requirement

Please provide relevant skills and track record to provide justifications on how you would be able to deliver the objectives as outlined in section 3 and how you would:

Devise a process to fulfil the objectives, such as:

Developing a methodology to build a compelling economic appraisal to inform a successful business case to secure new public funding should an opportunity arises. The Economic Case: (Economic Appraisal) should include details of the following:
