APPENDIX 1: SPECIFICATION OF SERVICES

The following text has been extracted from the project tender document '230906_SCENARIOSSINE42_RFQ_FINAL' published by Natural England to Contract Finder on 06th September 2023.

Specification of Requirements

1. Introduction

This contract opportunity is for a suitably experienced supplier to help Natural England understand what could affect Science and Innovation for the Natural Environment out to 2042 (SINE 42). The work will involve undertaking a foresight-based approach to deliver several relevant and plausible 20-year scenarios that express the possible risks and opportunities to the future of SINE.

2. Background to Natural England

Natural England is the government's advisor on the natural environment. We provide practical advice, grounded in science, on how best to safeguard England's natural wealth for the benefit of everyone.

Natural England was formally established on 1st October 2006 following the successful passage of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities (NERC) Act 2006 through Parliament. We are an independent statutory Non-Departmental Public Body. Our remit is to ensure sustainable stewardship of the land and sea so that people and nature can thrive. It is our responsibility to see that England's rich natural environment can adapt and survive intact for future generations to enjoy.

3. Background to the Contract

Natural England's Science, Evidence and Evaluation (SEE) Strategy Working Group & Natural England's Science and Evidence Programme Board have commissioned the project to meet the business need of updating the current Science, Evidence and Evaluation Strategy which approaches its expiration date in the summer of 2025.

SINE 42 is equally important for delivering Natural England's organisational transition from being evidence based to becoming increasingly evidence led organisation. By using best available evidence and foresight to inform the next SEE strategy, SINE 42 will be subsequently strengthening the UK's leadership in applied environmental science. SINE 42 is just one project that supports this vision.

The key goal of SINE42 is to research and inform the Science and Evidence programme of the future risks and opportunities emerging from the science and innovation landscape, specifically as it relates to the natural environment in the UK and beyond. The delivery of scenarios will help provide insights into how the SINE landscape may develop over the next 20 years, to in turn inform future SEE Strategies.

The SINE42 project was launched in March 2023 and involves members of the Futures, Systems, and Innovation team (FSI) in Natural England. The project involves an Advisory Group consisting of experts in the natural environment, academics, and foresight practitioners, amongst others.

The FSI team is looking to appoint a contractor with a proven track record in delivering high quality future scenario projects, has knowledge and experience in science and innovation policy, strategy and practice, and is well versed in foresight methods as well as their execution.

4. Project Deliverables Timeline

The contractor will be expected to build on the existing insights developed thus far with the Advisory Group by commencing the work from mid-October 2023 and completing the project by the end of March 2024.

Table 3: Schedule of project deliverables

Project initiation	By 30th October 2023
Set of (key) drivers of change for Science and Innovation	By 11th Dec 2023
Set of critical uncertainties	By 11th Dec 2023

Final scenarios for SINE42	By 25th March 2024
Report documenting process, outputs, and recommendations	By 30th March 2024

5. Areas of interest relevant to the objectives

The aim of the research is to increase Natural England's understanding of science and innovation for the natural environment between now and 2042, through the development of a set of robust plausible future scenarios. This research will help to ensure that the programme and future strategy for Natural England's science, evidence and evaluation will remain relevant, connected, and adaptable to future shifts or eventualities.

In building an understanding of what Science and Innovation for the Natural Environment may entail out to 2042 the following interest areas have been identified by the FSI team for exploration, but are not limited to:

i. WHAT external factors influence SINE in the future?

Understanding environmental change: The team seeks to understand the drivers, pressures, state and impact of environmental changes (such as climate and biodiversity) on the future of SINE. Equally we are looking for the influence that changes across the PESTLE framework could have upon the future of SINE (e.g. how could societal or political shifts / events influence public trust in SINE etc.). 'Systems framings', spatial and temporal settings should equally be considered when delivering this analysis.

Assessment & Responses: Through the development of scenarios, we wish to understand the values of a variety of stakeholders and partners, as well as explore the evolving role and influence of decision-making, intervention design, experimentation and evaluation.

ii. HOW is SINE led and delivered in the future?

This area of project focus includes an exploration into the practicalities, application, and leadership of SINE (in a professional sense). Here we hope to explore the topics of science and innovation governance, funding, practice and upskilling, to better understand HOW SINE might be delivered in the future. This should include an exploration into how the following might influence SINE's future delivery:

- models and strategies for science and innovation,
- UK priorities and decision making,
- efforts to assess performance and compliance,

- leadership and management,
- collaboration, as well as
- sources of knowledge and knowledge exchange.

iii. WHO are the key stakeholders for securing SINE's future?

This area of project focus aims to determine key actors, along with their roles and responsibilities in the future of SINE: This area of work is about understanding the relationships, networks, organisations and sectors related to SINE42 and how these interrelate and depend upon one another. This understanding will be key to analysing risks and opportunities for SINE's future. This will also include an analysis of the key competencies, motivations and cultures embedded within SINE.

In understanding the above, the contractors are expected to devise and implement an appropriate foresight process, with a justified methodology to create robust insights leading to the identification of drivers of change and critical uncertainties relevant to SINE42.

Moreover, the contractors will be expected to create a framework for developing robust and plausible future scenarios, a scenario architecture and deliver comprehensive and well-presented scenarios for SINE42. This work is intended to provide the foundations for further work to be taken forward by Natural England, to inform the future SEE Strategy for the organisation.

As part of this project, the contractors will be expected to identify and provide recommendations on areas for further investigation.

6. Key Activities

We have provisionally identified the following activities which will be needed to deliver the contract:

- An inception meeting to agree objectives, ways of working, scope, and timeline of the project with members of the project steering group.
- Review meeting with the project steering group to approve the final approach for the project and stage plan.
- Desk-based evidence/research in support of the aims and project plan.
- Interviews/workshops with key staff and stakeholders to establish understanding of the science and innovation landscape relevant to the natural environment.
- Regular progress summaries to be shared with the project team, and which can be shared as appropriate with the SINE42 Advisory Group and the SEE strategy programme board.
- Regular dialogue and check-ins with the contract manager, project team, and SINE42 Advisory Group to share thinking, outline risks or pressures, review interim deliverables (see table 1), and to adapt the focus of objectives as necessary.
- Development of an appropriate framework for the scenarios approach reviewed by the project steering group.
- A final report documenting the process, interim deliverables, the final scenarios, and recommendations of areas for further investigation.

To be deemed successful the outputs (see table 1) should:

1. Be well evidenced and underpinned by a carefully curated and justified methodology.
2. Be clearly communicated/ accessible.
3. Be client focused.
4. Be plausible and relevant.
5. Meet their intended purpose in the context of the SINE42 project as a whole (of providing underpinning insight via a set of scenarios to NE's science, evidence and evaluation (SEE) working group on the risks and possibilities for science and innovation for the natural environment.)

7. Budget

The maximum budget for this project is £45,999, VAT Included.

Please read Natural England's procurement terms and conditions at Procurement at Natural England - Natural England - GOV.UK \(www.gov.uk\)

8. Payment

The Authority will raise purchase orders to cover the cost of the services and will issue to the awarded supplier following contract award.

The Authority's preference is for all invoices to be sent electronically, quoting a valid Purchase Order number, after the completion of each deliverable.

It is anticipated that this contract will be awarded for a period of approximately 5 months to end no later than 30/03/2024. Prices will remain fixed for the duration of the contract award period. We may, at our sole discretion, extend this contract for up to a further 1 month until 29/04/2024 to enable completion of the key activities contained in the specification and/or extend this contract further to include related or further work. Any extension shall be agreed in writing in advance of any work commencing and may be subject to further competition.

9. Sustainability

Natural England protects and improves the environment and is committed to reducing the sustainability impacts of its activities directly and through its supply chains. We expect the Contractor to share this commitment and adopt a sound, proactive sustainable approach in keeping with the 25-year environmental plan/our commitments compliant with all applicable legislation. This includes understanding and reducing direct and indirect sustainability impacts and realising opportunities, including but not restricted to; resilience to climate change, reducing greenhouse gas emissions, water use and quality, biosecurity, resource efficiency and waste, reducing the risk of pollution, biodiversity, modern slavery and equality, diversity & inclusion, negative community impacts.

As a delivery partner, the successful contractor is expected to pursue sustainability in their operations, thereby ensuring the Contracting Authority is not contracting with a supplier whose operational outputs run contrary to the Contracting Authority's objectives. The successful contractor will need to approach the project with a focus on the entire life cycle of the project.

10. Contract Management

The project will be managed by a contract manager with oversight from a project steering group. We envisage two weekly updates through email and/or teams calls with the contract manager (Science and Evidence Programme Project Manager) and the project steering group to support the design and delivery of the project.

The steering group will comprise of: Science and Evidence Programme Project Manager, Deputy Director for Futures and Innovation, Senior Specialist Strategic Science, Senior Specialist Strategic Futures, and Evaluation Specialist.
