Annex A – Specification

Overview:

Cyber security is one of the Government's top national security priorities. The Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (BEIS) and the UK Space Agency work with other government departments and agencies, as well as with industry partners, to ensure that the risks to the energy, chemicals and space sectors are understood, build resilience and establish appropriate mitigations.

Project aims and objectives:

This project aims to examine how governments internationally are supporting organisations to develop their cyber resilience by addressing supply chain risks across the energy, chemicals and space sectors and what is considered best practice (voluntary and regulatory) in terms of measures implemented. This work will give us a better understanding of the supply chain cyber security measures taken globally. The intermediate and final outputs will be used to inform our nascent partnership building initiatives and ensure that we can support the development of any energy, chemicals and space sector cyber security supply chain policy, and feed in our views for any cross-government supply chain approaches in the UK context.

Throughout the project the following objectives should be addressed and evidenced:

- To understand how governments internationally are enabling or supporting organisations to develop their cyber resilience by addressing cyber security supply chain risks across the energy (including operational technology), chemicals and space sectors.
- To learn what is considered best policy practice (voluntary and regulatory) in either energy (including operational technology), chemicals and space supply chain practice, and identify possible policy options for us.
- To learn what is considered best policy practice (voluntary and regulatory) in cyber security supply chain practice, where it is transferrable to the energy sector (including operational technology), chemicals and space sector.
- To identify cyber security supply chain partnership delivery models and identify their success factors and barriers.
- To inform and improve the delivery of our proposed cyber security supply chain code of practice and partnership.

The project stages are detailed further below but broadly open-source research will be used to develop a comprehensive understanding of global cyber security supply chain measures in the energy, operational technology, chemicals and space sectors as well as exploring codes of practice

/ partnership within these sectors. The data gathered will then be analysed using qualitative and quantitative methods to produce the required outputs. The outputs will ~~include a project report and recommendations, accompanying summary presentation,~~ presentation for stakeholders, case studies on codes of practice / partnership and a database. BEIS will quality assure the outputs throughout the project and therefore, it may be necessary to make changes to deliverables based on this feedback.

We appreciate that supply chains face a range of different risks, and companies and governments respond with associated behaviours, incentives and mitigations. Throughout this commission we are concerned with the cyber security of the supply chain processes. There are many other well-known supply chain challenges which are the focus of many initiatives. We are only interested in those which have a material impact on cyber security and with most focus given to the energy, operational technology, chemicals and space sectors.

Background

The National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC) define the supply chain as ‘the extended network of trading relationships relied upon to deliver products, systems, and services. NCSC analysis suggests that commercial organisations are, and will remain, subject to supply chain attacks, both directly and indirectly. In addition, as CNI (Critical National Infrastructure) operators move increasingly towards digitally connected services and outsourced working to enhance the efficiency and technical capabilities of their operations, their supply chains will grow.

Cyber threats to the energy, chemicals and space sectors pose economic and national security risks, threatening our key objectives:

- Energy: To ensure the UK has a resilient, reliable, low cost and clean energy system. Our energy infrastructure underpins all our essential services and its disruption could have significant impact on public health and safety.
- Space: To contribute to the UK’s strategic ambitions in terms of ensuring resilient space capabilities. The space sector also continues to grow both economically, and in the technologies and services that benefit from and rely on space assets in the wider economy.
- Chemicals: To aid the development, optimisation, and monitoring of fundamental chemical processes used in industry for transforming raw materials and precursors into useful commercial products for society.

Improving cyber security across the energy, chemicals and space sectors will help ensure that the UK has a secure and resilient energy system, chemicals sector and space capabilities.

Since the launch of the BEIS Energy Cyber Security Programme in 2013 the BEIS Cyber Policy Team and the National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC) have focused efforts on collaboration with operators of critical national infrastructure (CNI) in the energy sector to ensure that they have appropriate technical advice and guidance to manage the cyber risks that they are exposed to. The UK Space Agency have also been identifying systematic vulnerabilities, which may either impact national security or the growth of the UK space sector in the international marketplace.

With the increasing focus on the supply chain, this research will also put BEIS and its executive agency – the UK Space Agency on the front foot, by having an array of potential policy options to learn from, and to take forward to mitigate risks. Furthermore, this work will help support delivery of the National Cyber Security Strategy strategic objectives 7 and 7.1 (<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/national-cyber-security-strategy-2016-to-2021>).

Project stages overview:

Phase 1: Initial Scoping/ Broad Open-source research

Mandatory Outputs:

Output 1A) Initial Short Report

Open-source research will need to be conducted on existing supply chain measures internationally with a focus on the energy, operational technology, chemicals, and space sectors but also more broadly if required.

A short report with an overview of

1) the multiple countries (9+) highlighting their key supply chain measures (these countries will be agreed between the supplier and the contracting authority after contract award but the bidder will be expected to make recommendations based on research).

2) The supplier will then be expected to make recommendations and provide a rationale for which 6 countries should be the focus of the more detailed open-source research in Phase 2. Please note that a justification will need to be provided to for this shortlist.

The following Supply chain 'measures' must be included for all countries:

- Standards
- Policies
- Initiatives (including Codes of Practice - i.e. something like a Charter of Trust, or the IET Cyber Security and Safety Code of Practice )
- Guidance
- Strategies
- Projects
- Risk management methodologies
- Supply chain partnerships / communities (i.e. operator, supplier and integrator group)
- Laws or Regulations
- Incentives (grants, tax breaks etc)

The report could be for example, a minimum of 4 pages long per country (9 countries in total) but this is subject to the extent of open-source information / research available and therefore could change / vary. Furthermore, additional pages may be required for the recommendations for which 6 countries will be the focus of the more detailed research. We will not take a prescriptive approach and indicate a definite minimum or maximum number of pages, therefore suppliers should be willing to demonstrate a degree of flexibility in terms of the length of documents based on the needs / requirements of BEIS.

Output 1B: Short case studies on identified cyber security codes of practice / partnerships that you can identify globally and an overview of their characteristics (e.g. origin, scope, costs, prevalence).

Examples here would include the IET Cyber Security and Safety Code of Practice. Code of practice or partnerships must include some aspects of cyber security supply chain work, however they could be more general. We are most interested in ones involving the energy sector, and / or operational technology, chemicals and space sector. We do appreciate that the codes of practice and partnership may well be industry led, and may not have the same geography as the priority countries. The supplier will select the most appropriate codes of practice and partnership and produce short high-level case studies on them and evidence reasons for selection as well as providing some information on the priority countries of origin.

Again, we are not prescriptive on the minimum or maximum number of pages for each case study – it is dependent on the extent of open-source information / research available and therefore could be subject to change. Suppliers should be willing to demonstrate a degree of flexibility in terms of the length of documents based on the needs / requirements of BEIS.

The following outputs/ phases are mandatory:

Phase 2: Focused Open-source Research and Detailed Codes of Practice Case Studies

Mandatory Outputs

Output 2A) Research and analysis to inform outputs 2B, 3A and 3B. Although 2A is not an output per se, suppliers must be able to evidence the research / analysis which will eventually form part of outputs 2B, 3A and 3B.

Once the 6 priority countries have been identified, the aim will be to critically examine the specific measures in detail through open-source research using qualitative and quantitative methods. The following questions must be considered for all countries:

- The reasons for the country selection and criteria used for identification.
- The measures that exist. What are they? Are they voluntary / regulatory?
- How these measures vary between countries.
- Industry perceptions of the measures.
- How and why these measures can be deemed successful/ or effective, and the evidence base for that.
- Whether these measures have supported in improving the cybersecurity of supply chains. If so, how? What is the evidence?
- If negatively perceived, examine the challenges and reasons.
- What barriers or factors have limited their success?
- What factors have enabled their success?
- How were specific projects funded?
- Do you think they had longevity? (or what happened when / if funding was withdrawn?)
- Which sector(s) were they in/ were covered?
- Were they focused on enterprise systems, operational technology or both?
- Does the country have any existing (or shown interest in) bi-lateral / multi-lateral engagement in supply chain measures? If so, who are their key partners?

The following supply chain ‘measures’ must be included for all countries:

- Standards
- Policies
- Initiatives (including Codes of Practice - i.e. Charter of Trust, or the IET Cyber Security and Safety Code of Practice)
- Guidance
- Strategies
- Projects
- Risk management methodologies
- Supply chain partnerships / communities (i.e. operator, supplier and integrator group)
- Laws or Regulations
- Incentives (grants, tax breaks etc)

Output 2B) Detailed Partnership / Code of Practice case studies – Drawing on the shorter case studies produced for part 1B, consultants will produce detailed written case studies on cyber security codes of practice or partnership that are most transferrable to the UK Energy, Chemicals and Space context. This must include the following information on:

- (i) their success
- (ii) their cost / funding model
- (iii) types and numbers of parties involved, geographic location, barriers to uptake
- (iv) how parties were persuaded to get involved and
- (v) its coverage (by sector type),
- (vi) outputs and
- (vii) running model and

- (viii) whether they were in the energy, chemicals space sectors or more general,
- (ix) whether they included a focus on operational technology, and include other areas of relevance, such as MSPs, and supporting services, that the essential service relies on.

- (x) a qualitative judgment on their potential applicability to the UK energy context, and any barriers to its transfer to the UK
- (xi) a qualitative judgment on their potential applicability to the UK space context, and any barriers to its transfer to the UK.
- (xii) a qualitative judgment on their potential applicability to the UK chemicals context, and any barriers to its transfer to the UK.

On (x), (xi) and (xii) we appreciate that the material may be substantially the same (for space, chemicals and energy), but the judgements on transferability / barriers may vary by sector.

Output 2B can be standalone, or can be included as a chapter in the (output 3B) final report, so long as the material are the same, and it covers the points identified.

We are not prescriptive on the minimum or maximum number of pages for this output – it is dependent on the extent of open-source information / research available and therefore could be subject to change. Suppliers should be willing to demonstrate a degree of flexibility in terms of the length of documents based on the needs / requirements of BEIS.

The following outputs/ phases are mandatory:

Phase 3 Analysis. Write Up and ### Recommendations

Mandatory Output

Qualitative and quantitative analysis will then be conducted on the results of the open-source research and produce the outputs outlined under this current phase. We have no specific format in mind for the analysis – as long as it is structured to provide the relevant outputs, provides evidence to support the research points/ questions stated above and follows with some recommendations as a minimum.

Output 3A: Comparable table / Database of guidance / standards/ policies and a qualitative / quantitative evaluation of:

- their effectiveness/success
- (ii) whether they were in the energy, chemicals and space sectors or more general,
- (iii) whether they included a focus on operational technology, and include other areas of relevance, such as MSPs, and supporting services, that the essential service relies on
- (iv) potential applicability to the UK context,

In addition, this database should include the data gathered for the measures / questions under outputs 1A, 1B, 2A and 2B.

For output 3A we are not prescriptive about the format and would be happy to receive any means which allowed for comparison and mining of the information, be that a Word Table, Excel spreadsheet or an Access database. In addition, output 3A should be accompanied by a short methodological note. This should explain the processes used to categorise the various initiatives, and the metrics and could for example be a minimum of 1 whole A4 page.

Output 3B) Detailed Report and Recommendations – Early chapters give overviews evaluating cyber security supply chain measures across the 9 countries evaluated. These aspects could be drawn heavily from output 1A. Then detail on the 6 countries prioritised as most relevant/ impactful for their cyber security supply chain practice. In addition, this output will include detailed case studies on the codes of practice / partnerships. This is to consider those for which it is most easily transferable to the UK energy, chemicals and space sectors (this can be drawn from output 2B).

This output is to include recommendations on supply chain measures and codes of practice / partnership that could work in the UK and any information on indicative costs, and barriers to transferability. This will draw on the research in phase 2, and the analysis for 3A. This will then be followed by some recommendations – i.e. next steps for potential projects / work that should be considered based on the findings and analysis.

We are not prescriptive on the minimum or maximum number of pages for this output – it is dependent on the extent of open-source information / research available and therefore could be subject to change. Suppliers should be willing to demonstrate a degree of flexibility in terms of the length of documents based on the needs / requirements of BEIS.

Output 3C) Final Presentation – Outlining the methodology, process, work and key findings of the project. It is possible that these presentations could be conducted remotely but suppliers should be prepared to present in person if necessary (in line with Covid-19 guidelines).

Output 3D) Presentation for stakeholders – Designing an alternative version of the above presentation (overview of the work and key findings) which can be used for briefing stakeholders. The audience for this presentation will be industry stakeholders within the energy, chemicals and space sectors but potentially also other CNI sectors. You may also be asked / be willing to present to these stakeholders if required. It is possible that these presentations could be conducted remotely but suppliers should be prepared to present in person if necessary (in line with Covid-19 guidelines). Locations would definitely be within the UK but the exact city / town is not yet known and is depend on BEIS needs and requirements.

Key Performance Indicators

Rating Descriptions

KPI	Description	Method and Frequency of Measurement	Red	Amber	Green
Work completed by Supplier - Timeliness	Work completed to be provided within a specific timeframe, in response to a customer	To be monitored by the Supplier and reported on a monthly basis	Exceeds the deadline agreed between the Supplier and BEIS	Exceeds the deadline agreed between the Supplier and BEIS	Meets the deadline agreed between the Supplier and BEIS.

Evidence Gathering/ Insights:

It is for the successful bidder to highlight how they would identify and analyse the information. This is likely to draw heavily from open-source research, using qualitative and quantitative research methods and their own expertise. However, subject to prior agreement and understanding of the resources required, we are open to the use of other methods to supplement this information gathering, be that through the use of grey literature, 1:1 discussions with expert practitioners, arranging workshops or round tables as a few possible examples. If you are planning to use any of these, please highlight these and any additional support that you would need from BEIS to make these happen (if any).

AOB's:

- For the outputs produced, BEIS will own the rights and these documents should not be shared with third parties. The successful bidder will need to sign an NDA or confidentiality agreement for the outputs of this work. This is a mandatory requirement in order to be awarded the contract.
- The consultant is permitted to work from their own premises and will not be required to work from BEIS offices / use equipment belonging to the department. Use of BEIS equipment will only potentially be necessary when transferring data.
- The timelines for the project have been outlined further below. We do not expect there to be fluctuations in demand for resource, but we expect suppliers to deliver within the required timeframes. BEIS will quality assure the outputs throughout the project and therefore, it may be necessary to make changes to deliverables based on this feedback whilst maintaining the required standards and ensuring that deadlines are met accordingly.
- Payments to the supplier will be made in accordance with outputs delivered and milestones achieved in three separate phases:
