Contracting Authority shall inform the Supplier and the Supplier shall immediately take such remedial action as is necessary to ensure compliance.

- B1-5 Notwithstanding any such inspection or testing, the Supplier shall remain fully responsible for the Supplies and any such inspection or testing shall not reduce or otherwise affect the Supplier's obligations under the Contract, and the Contracting Authority or UK SBS acting as an agent on behalf of the Contracting Authority shall have the right to conduct further inspections and tests after the Supplier has carried out its remedial actions.

Schedule 3 Specification

- 1 The Suppliers shall provide the Goods in accordance with this Schedule 2.

Introduction & Key Features & Capabilities

The Office for Product Safety and Standards (OPSS) is responsible for building national capacity for product safety to ultimately protect consumers from unsafe products and support compliant businesses. In addition to construction products, OPSS regulates a wide range of non-food and non-medicinal consumer products, all of which are listed here. All product regulations under OPSS' remit should be considered in scope of this tender, with a particular focus on construction products.

The Teddington site houses OPSS testing facilities and is currently undergoing refurbishment and development in a bid to strengthen national capability and support the enforcement of construction and product safety casework, as well as the investigation and research of new and emerging product risks. Mechanical testing is an important area for OPSS product testing, helping to determine the suitability of materials/products for their intended applications. In order to fully assess mechanical regulatory requirements and emerging mechanical risks, it is essential to introduce a Universal Testing Machine (UTM) for the determination of mechanical properties of products across OPSS' catalogue.

The UTM is a versatile mechanical testing system which is widely applied to identify and quantify mechanical properties of materials and components. There are many materials and components that may be the subject of future OPSS research and case studies; OPSS' product remit may change and/or expand and a UTM must be capable of being modified and updated with appropriate fixtures to identify properties of emerging materials and products.

Required criteria:

It is critical that any testing system selected is based on:

- Mature and well proven UTM technology (use of novel or immature techniques would represent an intolerable technical risk) with robust outputs which can withstand scrutiny.
- An established commercial UTM, which can be easily modified or enhanced to provide additional functionality, i.e., with interchangeable test fixtures and load cells. This can be new, ex-demonstration, or refurbished, provided it is in good working condition and the required criteria are met.
- A future-proofed instrument where parts are not foreseen to be discontinued in the near- to mid-future. Where instruments are discontinued in the future, we require assurance the supplier will continue to support and produce product parts.

Essential Criteria: For the Universal testing machine to be effective, it must fulfil the following criteria:

- 250-300 kN capacity, electromechanically driven load frame
- Capable of performing static mechanical tests including tensile, compression, and bend, and sheer testing.
- Supplied with a t-slot table for fixing components to the frame
- Supplied with software and a Windows 10-based desktop computer or laptop capable of running it
- High levels of assurance for the quantitative results obtained
- Automatic storage of time and date as stamped results for future analysis
- Operable by technical staff who have undergone suitable training
- Safe and legal to use within the UK

Desirable Criteria: For the Universal testing system to be fully effective, it would be desirable to fulfil the following criteria:

- Supplied with an extra load cell and appropriate adapter for lower capacity applications
- Included software loaded with pre-defined test templates for construction products/materials testing, in addition to standard coupon testing
- Supplied with the following accessories/fixtures (see Relevant Standards):
- Compression platens
- Bend and rebar bend Fixtures
- Tensile grips
- Deflectometer
- Video extensometer
- Equipped with built-in safety features which prevent damage to the equipment, e.g., collision prevention, overload protection, etc.
- Equipped with specimen protection features
- Equipped with additional operator safety features, e.g. shields, software features, etc.
- Relative ease of changing load cells and fixtures, e.g., adapters for lower capacity load cells, self-identifying load cells, etc.
- Delivery including on- site transportation to final operating location.
- Requires little maintenance by engineer or manufacturer.

A comprehensive support package from the equipment manufacturer will be required for ideally 5 years following installation (minimum 3 years) and setup in order to maximise equipment availability, serviceability and readiness.

Installation-

On-site delivery to Office for Product Safety and Standards, Stanton Avenue, Teddington, Middlesex, TW11 0JZ.

Delivery direct to its operating location and installation into the Mechanical Lab required by 25th March 2022.

Installation of the equipment includes unpacking and on-site validation and calibration ensuring the instrument is operating correctly, as well as user training. On-site installation and calibration should be in accordance with EN ISO 7500- 1:2018

Software and Hardware-

Universal testing machine software:

The software should be user-friendly, enabling easy control of all

UTM functions Generation of result reports should also be included as part of this requirement.

The software can link to a Laboratory Information Management System (LIMS) (including a system that is provided by a different supplier).

The software can link to a standard laptop or desktop computer (Windows 10).

Hardware:

A desktop computer or laptop to be connected to the UTM with the relevant software.

Training-

Training on instrument operation, maintenance and key features will be required. This should be provided on-site to OPSS technical staff.

Follow-up training sessions should be available when necessary.

Service Maintenance and Support (including whole life support)-

Manufacturers providing mechanical instrumentation must offer an additional service contract and this may include options which cover maintenance and support, over ideally a 5-year (minimum 3 year) period.

This should be presented in tiers reflecting the level of service received including detail relating to service during breakdowns, yearly preventative maintenance, and spare parts.

The service contract is expected to be paid upfront and will cover service maintenance and support. The instrument provider must offer this service and payment option.

Remote technical support and advice will be required on an ongoing basis.

As a minimum, services covered under the service schedule shall include but are not limited to:

Free of charge remote telephone support

One free call out with 48 hour response time per year An annual preventative maintenance visit

Availability of spare parts

Additional service level options should be presented in tiers, including but not limited to:

Frequency of call-outs and preventative maintenance Remote instrument monitoring diagnostics

Free spare parts

User and Service Manuals-

Service manuals will be required to support the operator when needed. Manuals must be appropriate, up to date versions and should be available in both paper and electronic format.

Service Spare Parts-

Spare parts should be provided under a service contract (see Service Maintenance and Support).

The instrument must not be expected to be discontinued in the near to mid future. Where this risk exists assurance must be provided that the supplier will continue to support and produce product parts.

Power and SiteRequirements -

Dimensions: 2650 mm

maximum height

Mass: 1500 kg packaged (not including additions) Power: 415 V,
