1. Introduction

80% of the UK population live in urban areas, and the culture and activities that are undertaken in these urban places is key to the successful delivery of net zero and sustainable environments.

The urban systems team are developing a strategy to understand the challenges and opportunities for innovation when considering the transition to net zero places. They are also wanting to understand the priorities for focus.

Current priorities are heavily informed by business and academia and the team are keen to hear young voices and more diverse voices to inform the work. A focus on young people is key because this generation will be living with the decisions made today.

An additional purpose of the work would be to inspire young people from varying backgrounds to help to shape and inform the priorities for delivering a net zero environment within which they live and work, and provide them with information about support that they could receive from UKRI.

A pilot was carried out in May 2021 with Beatfreeks who delivered some workshops in Birmingham. We would like to build on this work to gather a larger dataset to provide further evidence for our strategy and prioritisation work. This is especially important given the UK Governments focus on Levelling Up.

Discussions have been held with the EDI team within Innovate UK and with AHRC which have confirmed that this information does not currently exist.

In terms of risk, we recognise that the changing Covid-19 rules may cause disruption but we are willing to deliver using virtual platforms only to minimise this risk.

2. Aims and Objectives

The aim of the work is to produce a set of outputs that can be used to support the development of an innovation strategy for urban systems. The strategy needs to be representative of all communities and reflect the diversity of the people who live in urban areas.

The work will be carried out to represent regions as well as ethnicity and gender to understand whether the strategy needs to be UK based or more localized by gaining a better understanding of those local issues.

This piece of work is particularly focusing on young voices, aged 18-24, to ensure that the strategic output has relevance and longevity for the next generation to live in urban spaces.

The project should be carried out in an imaginative and engaging way to draw a wide variety of views from the participants and the outputs can be varied but must be able to be interpreted by Innovate UK to provide evidence for the final strategy.

We will work with the successful supplier to deliver an overview and introduction to our work and the challenges that we are exploring. We look forward to working with the successful supplier to refine the questions to be answered. Some examples of the type of questions and topics to be answered are illustrated below:

- What do you really love about your urban environment today and what would you like to see more of?
- How do you think climate change will affect your urban environment?
- Climate change is having an increasing influence on our towns and cities – what things should be changed and what are the barriers to doing this?
- What do you think a net zero and sustainable urban environment would like?
- How much influence do you think you have on e.g., town planning and how would you like to engage more with these decisions?
- In what ways would you like towns and cities to look or feel different in the next 30 years?

There should be 2 key deliverables:

An outcome that presents back insights from the research work which can be used to inform urban systems strategy in the form of a short report.

A creative presentation to show the features of a net zero city according to the audience. This will be used for communication purposes internally and potentially externally. We would be pleased to consider your proposals for the format of this.

3. Background to the Requirement

This work follows on from a pilot that was carried out in May 2021. The insights from this work are really valuable but the aim of this work is to gain a more representative view of the UK.

The work will be delivered by the Urban Systems Team within Innovate UK. The lead is Kara Cartwright, Innovation Lead – Clean Growth, supported by James Taplin, Missions Lead - Cities.

They will work with the successful supplier, providing appropriate supporting materials, approval of questions and assessment of deliverables.

We recognise that the changing Covid-19 regulations may require changes to scope throughout the delivery phase and will work with the successful supplier to overcome these and deliver the best outcomes.

4. Requirement

The proposal should include:

1. Clear methodology documented to describe the delivery mechanisms of both the quantitative and qualitative requirements. The methodology should include a rationale for the approach and evidence of other approaches considered and discounted.
2. Evidence of the delivery of similar projects
3. Methodology for engagement with the target audience and evidence of having delivered this in the past
4. A risk register for the project
5. A clear delivery timeline and details of the delivery team (we would expect that the delivery team is diverse in itself)
6. Description of how the supplier will comply with GDPR requirements
7. Examples of the outputs requested from previous work
8. An evaluation with the participants involved in the qualitative research should be undertaken
9. Quotation including cost breakdown of people, materials, technology
10. We would welcome any thoughts about future builds to this work if we were to carry out a follow-on exercise

5. Suggested Methodology

If applicable: Total number of Interviews (survey) Total number of Interviews (qualitative) Total number of Focus Groups	Insert numbers: Min 200 Min 50 Min 5
Any other specific requirements	The target audience is 18–24-year-olds. The participants should represent all the regions of the UK: South West, South East, West Midlands, East Midlands, Wales, North East, North West, Scotland & Northern Ireland and they need to live in towns or cities. There also needs to be a mixture of social backgrounds for the qualitative research.

We welcome suggestions regarding different methods and approaches and would like to see evidence of how these approaches have worked in the past e.g., virtual, hybrid, in person; focus groups, workshops etc.

We would like to understand the rationale for the chosen methodology.

Delivery timelines must be included in the proposal and applicants must include evidence that shows how similar work has been delivered previously.

The proposal must set out how it is compliant with GDPR.

6. Deliverables

Quantitative research to reach a minimum of 200 participants which delivers a 50/50 balance on gender and that has a strong BAME representation (minimum of 20%).

Qualitative research which involves a minimum of 50 participants. This could be run as a workshop or focus group and can be virtual, hybrid or in person.

We would request a minimum of 5 qualitative research sessions to be delivered.

The target audience is 18–24-year-olds.

The participants should represent all the regions of the UK: South West, South East, West Midlands, East Midlands, Wales, North East, North West, Scotland & Northern Ireland and they need to live in towns or cities.

There also needs to be a mixture of social backgrounds for the qualitative research.
